THE KING IS DEAD

The late King George the Fifth, whose death is mourned to-day throughout the British Empire and the entire world.

LONG LIVE THE KING BRITAIN'S MONARCH PASSES AWAY AFTER FIVE DAY'S ILLNESS

STRENGTH EBBS SLOWLY AFTER COUNCIL OF STATE NAMED

SANDRINGHAM, JANUARY 20.
HIS MAJESTY THE KING PASSED AWAY QUIETLY A FEW MINUTES BEFORE MIDNIGHT.

Hopes of His Majesty's recovery were lessened with the bulletin issued at 5.30 p.m. referring to his diminishing strength, which created considerable alarm.

It is thought that the expenditure of energy due to the King's meeting with his Privy Council to-day told upon the patient's weak condition. But a hope still remained among the public that the King might yet regain the lost ground at what is regarded as a critical stage.

Authoritative circles state that it was no really definable illness from which the King was suffering. The general absence of symptoms which doctors could treat was one of the most difficult things about the case of the King. Actually His Majesty's condition was described as "a general slowing up of the bodily machine."

His Majesty King Edward VIII who to-day succeeds to the Throne of his father, King George V, and carries with him in his new responsibilities the love and fealty of a mighty Empire.

LIFE STORY OF LATE KING GEORGE V

UNEXPECTEDLY MADE HEIR TO BRITISH THRONE

Born at Marlborough House on June 3rd, 1865, the illustrious King now departed was the second son of the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra. As the junior son of the Royal House, the heavy regal responsibilities which later were to fall upon his shoulders were not then within the contemplation of his august parents, and he was educated for a naval career without thought that one day he would ascend to the Throne of the greatest Empire in the history of the world.

The sudden death of the Duke of Clarence, his elder brother, in 1892, brought him into unexpected prominence. He was then 27 years of age and, as heir to the Throne, became a personage of leading public importance for the first time.

NOT A LINGUIST.

Of his childhood days there are few anecdotes, except that he exhibited a curious distaste for all things foreign, an aversion which extended to foreign tongues. This was reflected in the fact that he was at no time a linguist. Indeed that he spoke no language with fluency except his own. John Neale Dalton, who was tutor to the sons of Edward VII, has related several stories of the late King's contemptuous references to the German tongue when he was scolded for lack of diligence.

At the age of fourteen, he accompanied the Duke of Clarence on a three years' tour of the world in the "Bacchante", as a part of the training undertaken to equip him for his future place in the affairs of the nation.

HONGKONG VISIT.

They visited Hongkong on December 20th, 1881. On his return, he took up his naval career wholeheartedly, and served on many ships of famous names. In November, 1891, he was taken seriously ill with typhoid but made a good recovery. The death of the Duke of Clarence on January 4th, 1892, marked the end of his life in the Royal Navy.

In July of the following year, at twenty-eight, he married Princess Victoria Mary, the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Teck, amid great national rejoicing. The match was fortunate in every respect and was universally approved as the Royal bride, like himself, was wholly British in taste and interest.

SEVEN MONTH TOUR.

The death of Queen Victoria interrupted the plans for a short while, but early in 1901, the late King, accompanied by the Queen, sailed from Portsmouth on the famous tour of the Ophir, of forty-seven thousand miles, an epoch-making journey which occupied the Royal Pair for over seven months.

His first great function was the opening of the first Australian Parliament at Melbourne in the great Exhibition Building. After this had been carried out with world-wide felicitations, he proceeded to New Zealand, returning by way of South Africa and Canada, being warmly acclaimed at every point.

On his return to England he was entertained by the Corporation of London, and made a remarkable speech, clearly illustrating the immense value of the tour from the viewpoint of personal knowledge and interest. At the time, over 30 years ago, he stressed a difficulty, which even to-day confronts the Dominion, the want of population. He pointed out that huge areas exist, rich in minerals or capable of fruitful cultivation, calling for development, though he emphasised ed that the emigrants must be suitable.

"By this means," he said, "we may still further strengthen, or at all events pass on unimpaired that pride of race, that unity of sentiment and purpose, that feeling of common loyalty and obligation, which knit together and alone can maintain the integrity of our Empire."

THE ACCESSION.

In the same year he was created Prince of Wales. Much public work of importance fell to his lot during the next few years, and he rapidly gained a reputation as one of the most conscientious and hard-working Princes Britain has ever had.

On the death of his father or May 6th, 1910, he became King and was crowned in Westminster Abbey on June 22nd, 1911.

In December, 1911, the King and Queen visited India, and at the Great Delhi Durbar, His late Majesty was proclaimed Emperor of India. This, incidentally, was his first visit of a reigning sovereign to Britain's Overseas Dominions and it was greeted by great outward manifestations of loyalty and enthusiasm.

THE WORLD WAR.

It was, however, the late King's duty to reign during a period of the greatest crisis in the history of the world. Three years after his triumph in India, the British Empire, so brilliantly extended by Victoria, and consolidated by his father, was launched into the Great War and this supreme test (to which were added serious troubles in India, Ireland and Egypt) was surmounted successfully.

The King and Queen threw their energies wholeheartedly into aiding all efforts for the amelioration of those suffering.

The King's condition in the afternoon caused doctors the gravest concern. They remained in attendance throughout afternoon and evening. Oxygen was administered to the King to-day, the method used being to open a cylinder of oxygen in the corner of the patient's room so that it would be revitalised.

IN NO PAIN

The King, who still actually was in no pain, was kept as quiet as possible, although the Queen, who was never out of call, saw him frequently. His children, except the Duke of Gloucester, who has been suffering from a sore throat and was expected to leave Sandringham to-day, were all in His Majesty's room for short periods.

In order to insure the utmost quiet the Air Ministry asked airmen to refrain from flying within four miles of Sandringham.—Reuter.

DIMINISHING STRENGTH

London, Jan. 20.

A bulletin from Sandringham, signed by Sir Frederick Williams, Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn, and issued at 5.30 p.m. to-night, stated:

"The condition of His Majesty shows diminishing strength."—British Wireless.

END IS NEAR

London, Jan. 20.

"The King's life is drawing peacefully towards its close," states a bulletin signed by Sir Frederick Williams, Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn at 9.35 p.m. to-day.—British Wireless.

The Prince and Princesses and their mother, the Queen, were at Sandringham to-night as the King's crisis approached.—United Press.

GALLANT EFFORT

Lord Dawson of Penn guided His Majesty's hand when the King signed his signature to the document creating the Council of State, which was to act on his behalf during his illness. His Majesty made a gallant effort at this time and it was believed it cost him much in his reserve of strength.—United Press.

BELLS OF LONDON

The bells of the churches of London rang round the world to-day as a King of England passed and a new monarch ruled. They were echoed in Hongkong when the news of the King's death arrived at 8.22 a.m. to-day.

NEW KING LOVED BY EMPIRE

RECORD OF SERVICE AS PRINCE

SOLDIER AND SPORTSMAN

The man who becomes King Edward VIII to-day is 42 years of age, a gallant soldier, a fine sportsman and one of the most loved princes even to ascend the throne of Britain.

A brief biography of His Majesty tells us that he received his naval training at Osborne and Dartmouth that he was invested as Prince of Wales at Carnarvon in 1911.

On the eve of a tour to Germany in 1913 he was promoted to Lieutenant in the Royal Navy, but at this stage he went to Magdalen College, Oxford, for an undergraduate course. The following year, in November 1914, he was serving with the British Armies in France, attached to Sir John French's staff.

During the war he served with zeal and marked ability, and was the bearer of the historic despatch from Sir John French respecting the turn of the fighting tide at Neuve Chapelle. In 1916 he served in Egypt with the British forces and in the following winter was in Italy, at the front when the great Austrian offensive crumbled the Italian defences. He saw that ghastly retreat.

He paid his first visit to Canada and the United States in 1919 and won universal popularity there. He was much interested in Canadian farming, and himself stocked a great ranch in Alberta where his cattle and horses have taken ribbons for years.

His welcome in India, Japan and the East generally was no less warm than that in Canada and America. This was in 1922, when his father, the King, was equally busy. He toured South Africa and South America in 1926.

He returned in haste from East Africa in 1928, when his father, the late King, was first stricken. He was one of the Counsellors of State appointed at that time.

With Prince George he toured South America again in 1931. By this time he was keenly interested in aviation and the following year he was appointed Honorary Air Commodore-in-Chief of the squadron comprising the auxiliary Air Force. If the mortality of the monarch approached that of the prince he will be a great name in English history.

FIRST TOUR OF HIS EMPIRE

MAKING CONTACTS WITH BRITISH DOMINIONS

poverty and bereavement, while the late King bore his own anxieties in the presence of France of an impulsive heir, and on the North Sea, of one of his younger sons. Among the things for which he will be remembered are the abolition of all German titles in the British Royal Family, and the creation of the Royal House of Windsor by special decree.

PREVIOUS ILLNESS.

The whole Empire was thrown into a state of alarm and anxiety when the late King suffered a severe illness in 1928, from the ill effects of which he did not completely recover until 1930. His Majesty had attended the Armistice Day ceremony at the Cenotaph on November 11th, 1928, and ten days later it was announced that he was confined to bed with a cold and fever. The illness took a disquieting turn within a few days, some consideration of the lung being recorded. The infection later spread, and anxiety increased when, on November 30th, his doctors announced that there was a marked decline in the strength of the monarch.

On December 4th, a meeting of the Privy Council was held in a room adjoining His Majesty's bedroom, and His Majesty signed an Order-in-Council appointing the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Prince, the Prime Minister and the Lord Chancellor as Counsellors of State in the emergency.

Then followed many anxious days, an operation having to be performed for drainage of the right side of the chest. On December 19th, the five doctors attending His Majesty announced that the patient's progress was established on a firmer basis, but His Majesty again had a relapse.

on the 27th, after which he made slow progress, until, early in February, he was able to be moved by motor ambulance to Bognor.

THANKSGIVING.

His Majesty returned to Windsor in May, but on the last day of that month he was again confined to his bed with a feverish attack, in abscess having formed under the old scar. The royal patient made slow progress, after this, but he was so unwell that the Thanksgiving Service arranged for June 16th had to be postponed. Eventually, however, it was held at Westminster Abbey, on July 4th, His Majesty and other members of the Royal Family attending.

NEAR TO HEART OF PEOPLE.

The late King George also stood very near to the heart of his people in his decision to ally the Royal Family with the noble families of Great Britain by the marriages of Princess Patricia, Princess Mary, the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester.

His most suitable epitaph is probably contained in the summary of a writer who described the late King as really a human man, husband and father. Simplicity was the hall-mark of all he said and did. Not brilliant, he still was serenely confident of his ability to surmount all unresolvable difficulties, and he did so by devoting his life and soul to his job.

Unexpectedly a King, he never once flinched from the heavy trials of his public responsibilities, fulfilling them without regard to personal feeling or exertion. His activities in the interests of the realm earned for him the precious esteem and affection of the whole Empire.

was quick and his suffering was very light. Also it was the death of a monarch who would have preferred, at home in Sandringham, which he always loved best. Here he felt ease and could talk or shoot or ride like an ordinary English gentleman. The King was without pain in mind and passed in complete peace.

Eyes And Ears For The Queen Mary

4-MILE BEAM OF LIGHT TO DETECT ICEBERGS Plans For Maiden Voyage Broadcast

Clydebank, Jan. 1.

A new safety measure for the Cunard-White Star liner the Queen Mary is being experimented within Messrs. John Brown's shipyard here, and if the tests now being carried out are successful, the liner will have a powerful light beam to warn the officers of any obstacles in her path.

The beam, which will be connected with the ship's wireless system, will form an arc of light extending for four miles in the direction the Queen Mary is steaming.

CELEBRITIES' BROADCASTS

Any obstacle such as an iceberg or a wreck will break this beam, and an officer in the chartroom will receive a warning flash. The liner's course can then be immediately changed.

The most remarkable radio experiment ever attempted on the maiden voyage of a liner will be made in the vessel when she sails from Southampton on May 27.

Listeners in their armchairs in England and in the United States will be able to switch on their sets and follow the events taking place in the wander ship of the world almost as well as if they were on board.

In the Queen Mary is a miniature Broadcasting House, equipped with transmitting and receiving apparatus unequalled in any ship afloat, and incidents in the liner will be broadcast to stations in England and the United States and relayed.

Concerts in the liner will be one of the big features of the programme, and as many celebrities will be passengers, it is probable that a number will be selected to give over the microphone their impressions of the ship and the voyage.

600 Ft. Aerial Span

To deal efficiently with the demands on its regular service the liner will have 32 wavelengths—11 for shortwave use, nine for radio telephony, seven for long and five for medium wave. Nine aerial systems will be required to operate these wavelengths, the main aerial having a span of 600ft.

Passengers may speak by radio-telephone to any part of the world, and the installation is equipped with a secret device so that conversation cannot be intercepted or overheard. Thirty-eight loudspeakers are cunningly concealed in the public rooms that they appear to be part of the schemes of decoration, and three programmes may be relayed at the same time.

The engine of the Queen Mary have been officially passed by Cunard-White Star experts, and they are ready for the tests to be carried out early in the New Year.

One Man Gives Away £1,000,000

LORD NUFFIELD'S LATEST, £125,000

LORD NUFFIELD, ex-bicycle repairer, to-day one of the world's leading motor-car manufacturers, has given £125,000 for—

"The early discovery and efficient orthopaedic treatment of every child threatened with crippledness" throughout the country.

This latest sum—his largest single gift to charity—brings the total of Lord Nuffield's charitable gifts to more than £1,000,000.

For The Children

Lord Nuffield, formerly Mr. William Richard Morris, is fifty-eight years old, married, but has no family.

He has always taken keen interest in the welfare of children and young people.

His gifts include £50,000 for crippled children in New Zealand; £50,000 for crippled children in Australia; £10,000 each for the Forest Association, Motor and Cycle Trades Children's Homes, St. Peter's Hall College, Oxford; and many smaller sums for crippled children and adults.

Other Gifts

Other large gifts made by Lord Nuffield in the past ten years are: Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford (£100,000); Guy's Hospital, London (£100,000); St. Thomas's Hospital, London (£100,000); Birmingham Hospitals (£100,000); Wingfield Orthopaedic Hospital (£100,000); League of Industry (£100,000); Worcester Royal Infirmary (£100,000); British Empire Cancer Campaign (£100,000); Country and Warwickshire Hospitals (£100,000); Parnworth Village Settlement (£100,000); Mount Vernon Hospital (£100,000).

A central fund named after Lord Nuffield is to administer this latest gift of £125,000. It will be spent during the next four or five years in developing the organisation on behalf of cripples where this work cannot at present be undertaken on an adequate scale.

SEVENTY YEARS

1861-2d.

WAY back in 1861 penny stamps for the Cape of Good Hope were being printed in England. Travel then was not what it is to-day. The stamps were like a riddle, so "emergency" stamps were issued.

1935-£140

TWO of those "emergency" penny stamps were sold at Harmer's sale rooms, London, last month, for £140.

Millionaire And Bride Marooned

Brisbane (Queensland), Jan. 1.

Mr. George Vanderbilt, 21-year-old American multi-millionaire, and his bride have been stranded on an uninhabited island off the Queensland coast for two days and two nights.

The Vanderbilts are on a honeymoon trip that is taking them round the world.

At Lady Musgrave Island, in the coral belt off this coast, they left their yacht and went ashore. Then the yacht returned to the mainland for some stores.

A violent storm arose. The yacht could not make the island. And there, for two days and two nights, the young couple were cut off from the civilised world.

Inherited £4,000,000

They made a rude shelter and waited till the weather became calm enough for their friends to rescue them.—Reuter.

Mr. George Vanderbilt, son of the late Mr. Gwynne Vanderbilt, was married to Miss Lucille Parsons early last September at West Orange, New Jersey. Fifteen hundred guests were present at the ceremony.

On the bridegroom's 21st birthday, September 24, he inherited $20,000,000 (£4,000,000). He will get $20,000,000 more when he is 25.

Happy Days Are Back

MILLIONS EXTRA ON ENJOYMENT

OFFICIAL news of happier times: Britain is drinking more champagne and more beer; smoking more tobacco; using more petrol, and spending more on entertainment.

We are even drinking more tea and using more sugar.

True, the sale of whisky has gone down, but that has really been due to the wildness of last winter.

This cheerful story of a nation's gaiety, published appropriately on the eve of Christmas, is contained in a Blue Book report by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise for the year 1934-35.

Revenue Hold-Up

The net revenue for the year showed an increase of £3,500,000, the total being £289,000,000. The increase would have been larger still but for the Budget remissions of duty on beer, silks and heavy oil. Even the unrealised hope of a reduction of duty on spirits in the last Budget robbed the past year's revenue of about £1,000,000, because the trade postponed clearances of liquor in anticipation of the Budget. The Chancellor will get the benefit of that £1,000,000 in his next Budget.

Chief increases in revenue were: Beer (after allowing for higher duty before April, 1935), £3,000,000; Tobacco, £2,000,000; Petrol, £2,000,000; Entertainment, £500,000; Champagne, wines, etc., £250,000.

More than half the increase in wines was in Empire vineyards, which carried a duty of 4s. a gallon, against the full duty on foreign wines of 8s. a gallon.

Consumption of spirits fell from 14,200,000 proof gallons in 1925-26, to 9,400,000 proof gallons last year—a equal to a reduction per head of the population from one-third of a gallon to one-fifth.

Beer consumption rose by 16 per cent.

"It will be observed," say the Commissioners, "that the revenue increases reflect the change in the purchasing power of the people."

WORLD'S LARGEST AIRSHIP READY

New Zeppelin Floating Hotel With Dance Floors, Cocktail Bars, Central Heating

NEW YORK IN

LINER LUXURY FOR
80 PASSENGERS

THE largest aircraft ever built waits in a long, high building at Friedrichshafen, on the shores of Lake Constance, Germany, for its first journey across the world.

It is still known as the Zeppelin LZ129. The Sunday Express is able to reveal that it will be called Adolf Hitler.

It will be ready for its first flights in a few days. Half a million cubic feet of gas is being pumped into it—the last process in its two years of construction.

This great hangar has seen its birth from a design on a drawing-board to the mighty skeleton, dwarfing the workmen who swarmed among the maze of girders.

For the past few weeks men and women have been busy stitching the great silver envelope.

Smoking Allowed

The 819-foot-long "ship of the air" will carry eighty passengers and a large crew. It will be driven by four mighty oil-burning engines at more than eighty miles an hour.

Passenger will not be accommodated in cramped compartments. Long promenade decks, glass-enclosed, will give them views of the lands and seas thousands of feet below.

They will eat in extensive dining saloons, served by stewards, with food prepared by first-class chefs.

There will be smart cocktail bars and dancing floors. Passengers will be able to smoke—the helium gas is non-inflammable.

CURIOUS EXPORT TRAFFIC

Christchurch, N. Z.

A strange traffic has grown up between New Zealand and Germany in the eye-teeth of deer.

Several months ago an inquiry was received and a consignment of several hundred teeth was forwarded to a German firm at the price of 1.6d a pair. A further 200 pairs has just been despatched.

The keenest demand is for discoloured teeth, probably because that is a proof that the teeth are from adult deer. It is believed that they may be used in the making of some kind of ceremonial insignia. As deer are being widely culled owing to their depredations on farm produce, the demand can easily be supplied.

TABITHA STATES HER CASE

WHITEHALL'S WAR ON THE SHIP'S CAT

Cat-o'-nine-tails retired from the sea many years ago. Now the ordinary nomad cats of commerce are being forced off the sea. Nine lives are no good to them. They would need 999 to stand a chance of getting through the narrow meshes of the regulations.

I interviewed one of the last of the old sea-cats last evening. Tabitha, she told me her name was, and she claimed howling acquaintance with Polaris and the Southern Cross.

The fact that it was a wet night may have contributed to Tabitha's appearance, but, as she sat on her bollard thoughtfully licking her chops, it took no student of feline psychology to realise that here was the product of a hard life. She told me her story.

"It was the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries," she said, and she sniffed at the title as an eminent behaviorist should sniff at a spook-part.

"They solemnly lumped us in with dogs and said that we carried rabies. They brought out regulations."

"Whenever our ships were in a British port we were to be shut up. Of course, that did not last long."

"I cannot say that," replied the bridegroom.

The bride's mother collapsed, and the wedding was stopped.

"I cannot go on," Kitching told the pastor in the vestry.

The wedding was abandoned, and Miss Horton returned to Mansfield with her wedding cake and flowers.

On May 28, Miss Horton was awarded £100 damages against Kitching at Nottingham.

This month the couple again stood before a minister, in Mansfield Parish Church.

This time the bridegroom said "I will."

THEY DRESS FOR DINNER IN RUSSIA NOW

Girls Who Are Seeing Evening Dresses For The First Time

The women of Russia are taking an interest in clothes again. Mme. Schiaparelli, the dress designer, who has just returned to London from Moscow, said "I was besieged with questions about how the women in the great outer world are dressing."

Mme. Schiaparelli designed a dress for the Russian working woman—"black wool, with a washable collar, very simple"—and a red coat of heavier wool. It can be worn at business and at home, by day or in the evening.

"Dressing for dinner is just beginning over there," she says. "But it is spreading rapidly. Many of the younger women have never seen evening dresses before."

"The women are generally healthy good looking, and intelligent. Their babies, which are the healthiest I have ever seen, are looked after in creches all day and reclaimed in the evenings when their mothers come home from work."

FIGHT A COLD

where the cold fights you . . .

Colds usually attack in the nose, throat, and chest. That is where you should fight them. You can—by simply rubbing Vicks VapoRub on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Penetrates—To Ease Congestion. Instantly, there is a warm, comfortable tingle in your chest as the ointment begins to "draw out" the tightness and pain and break up the congestion.

Vaporizes—To Clear Air-Passages. At the same time, its healing vapours carry soothing medication direct to the air-passages. They clear the clogging mucus—let you breathe easily again.

All night long, while you sleep in comfort, this powerful two-way action keeps on work.

ing. By morning, almost always, the worst of the cold is over.

Mothers especially appreciate this safe, external treatment for children's cold-troubles.

For Better Control of Colds. Vicks VapoRub has an ideal companion product that helps to prevent colds. It is called Vicks Vapo-Aid. You simply put a few drops up each nostril at the first sniffle or sneeze.

These two products are the basis of the remarkable Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. The Plan provides the proper medication for every type and stage of a cold. It means fewer colds, less severe colds, far less danger and expense from colds. Full details in the packages.

More Babies Campaign In Italy

Rome, Dec. 22.

While reiterating that there is no elbow room for Italy's 42,000,000 inhabitants within her present confines the Italian Government resolutely pursues its campaign for the encouragement of big families.

The nation is invited to count among its most practical patriots such wives as can give birth to a series of children as rapidly as nature can allow and as long as the mother's physique can bear the strain.

Competition in this race for the prolific is organised locally in each of the 95 provinces of Italy, and yesterday Signor Mussolini received the 95 prize-winners. The money rewards are given to those who married after December 10, 1912, have the largest number of living children to date.

The 95 women honoured by the Duce had given birth to 610 babies in less than ten years of married life.

At the end of the ceremony at the Palazzo Venezia the mothers hunched over their wedding plans for the coming year.

Tay Bridge Tragedy

MAN WHO FORECAST A GREAT DISASTER

Dundee, Dec. 22.

In this town is an aged man who has tried in vain for fifty-six years to banish from his mind the memory of a tragedy.

In 1879 Mr. Alexander Kennedy, of Nethergate, Dundee, was a foreman cleaner, and sometimes acted as fireman on trains crossing the famous Tay Bridge.

Three days after Christmas Day in that year the bridge collapsed. More than eighty people lost their lives when a train plunged through it into the river.

"I told my father and friends a fortnight before that the bridge would collapse," he said to me, "but they laughed at me."

"I was acting as fireman on a pilot engine between Leuchars and Dundee. A gale was blowing, and I was certain that the bridge shook as we passed over it."

On the night before the disaster an engine-driver called at the home of Mr. Kennedy. He scoffed at the young fireman's warning.

Next night he was drowned in the Tay when his engine fell through the bridge.

"On the Sunday night that the tragedy took place a storm rose," Mr. Kennedy went on.

"There was a seventy-mile-an-hour gale, and slates and chimney pots were blown from houses."

"I was working as engine-cleaner that night when a pointsman rushed to tell us that communication between both ends of the bridge was broken."

"I began getting a pilot engine ready to cross the bridge to make investigations, but two men, who crawled on their hands and knees over part of the bridge, found that the centre girders had collapsed."

"If the discovery had not been made I would have driven my pilot engine into the Tay."

"The lights of a train seen on the bridge had suddenly disappeared."

"That was all. The passengers were trapped, and although it is known that at least eighty-three lives were lost, the exact number has never been discovered."

Early the next morning a man stood among the crowd. He looked at the shattered bridge, and tears came into his eyes.

He was Sir Thomas Bouch, the designer.

Jilted Girl Marries Man She Sued

ON March 23 Miss Eva M. Horton of Mansfield, Notts, and Mr. Leslie Francis Kitching, of Colindale, N.W., stood before the pastor in West Hendon Baptist Church.

Their marriage had then twice been postponed.

"Wilt thou have this woman to thy lawful wedded wife?" he asked.

On May 28, Miss Horton was awarded £100 damages against Kitching at Nottingham.

This month the couple again stood before a minister, in Mansfield Parish Church.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

YOUNG LADY HELD UP AT KOWLOON TONG

Allegations that he was assaulted by the Police and forced to admit that he was connected with the crime were made by Tang Sang, alias Tang Sang-sang, 28, unemployed, at the Criminal Sessions yesterday afternoon when he was charged with (a), having committed an armed robbery on Miss Sule Tam, an inspector of the Society for the Protection of Children, (b), unlawful possession of a revolver, and (c), breach of the Deportation Ordinance.

The accused denied the first charge but admitted the others. He was found "not guilty" on the first count and on the other two was sentenced to one year and three years' hard labour respectively, the sentences to run consecutively.

The case which was tried by Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden commenced at 2.15 p.m. and did not finish until 5 p.m.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. J. B. Prentiss, Acting Assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution. The accused was not legally represented. The jury comprised Messrs. A. C. Wilkinson (Foreman), J. L. Shum, P. H. Hing, F. J. C. Cheung, Cheung Tat-chiu, A. A. Lopez, Li Kwok-ying.

Lady Southern Honoured

"Don't Be Afraid"

Mr. Williams said that on November 6 about 4 p.m., Miss Tam left her office at No. 12 Sai Yung Choi Street, on her way to the Old Kowloon Tong Village. She had sent her assistant, Chan Kuen, ahead of her and instructed him to follow her. Boundary Street near the polo ground. She took a bus and alighted at the corner of Boundary Street and met her assistant according to arrangement, and she told him to go ahead.

Miss Tam followed behind her assistant along Boundary Street, and when she got to the Fernandez Gardens her attention was attracted by two men who were behind her. She heard one of the men say, "Go up closer to her; don't be afraid."

On turning her head, she was ordered by one of the men not to move, while the other pulled at her handbag. Miss Tam was carrying a handbag at the time, and on being held up she dropped it to the ground. One of the men picked it up, after which both of them walked off. Miss Tam then called out to her assistant and together they attempted to follow them.

After they had gone a short distance, one of the men turned round and fired a shot. Miss Tam and her assistant then decided not to follow, but instead went to Prince Edward Road where they met a European traffic officer. A report was made to him and the party then went to the Mongkok Police Station.

Identified by Back

On December 18, because was arrested in the Kowloon Chuen tea-house on Shanghai Street, near Argyle Street, third floor, where he produced a key to a rattle basket in which was found a revolver.

Subsequently, an identification parade was held at which the accused was picked out by Miss Tam. She was then taken to the police station and about ten minutes. She was not certain that accused was the man, though she thought his back resembled that of one of the robbers. The assistant, Chan Chuen, failed to identify him.

When he was charged at the Police Station, accused admitted the robbery, but at the Magistracy he denied it.

Evidence was then called to substantiate the Crown's case, after which the accused, in the witness-box, denied having taken part in the crime. He alleged that he was beaten by Sub-Inspector Cunningham and other Chinese constables into confessing that he took part in the robbery.

Asked as to why he did not make a report to the police, he answered that the reason was that he knew European physicians could not cure internal injuries.

Chan Sam, a sister-in-law of the accused, testified that at the time of the robbery, the prisoner was in the country.

In the course of his brief summing-up, His Lordship advised the jury not to take into consideration the identification of the accused, as the identity was not beyond all reasonable doubt. If the jury believed the story of the accused's sister-in-law, they should find him not guilty.

After a retirement of about five minutes, the jury returned a verdict of "Not Guilty."

The charges of breach of deportation were then dealt with. It was stated that accused was banished for three years on August 28, 1934. He was sentenced to three years' hard labour on September 21, 1931 for being concerned in an armed robbery, and a sentence of 18 months' hard labour on May 16, 1934 for breach of the Deportation Ordinance.

HONGKONG GUIDES

YEAR'S ACTIVITIES REVIEWED IN ANNUAL REPORT

Many topics of interest to Hongkong Girl Guides are contained in the report of the Association for 1934-1935, which has just been issued. Besides the report for the year, in a foreword by Lady Southern, O.B.E., Colony Commissioner, who says inter alia:

"The Social Service side of Guiding still needs development, but we have plans for the future. Guides and Brownies made seraphs and dressed dolls for children in hospitals. One company gave a Christmas party to another company. The Guides and Brownies contributed towards the Silver Jubilee collection for charities. One pack contributed to the Society for the Protection of Children."

As regards the progress of the Movement in Hongkong, although the numbers are slightly less, I do not think we need regard this as an adverse sign. There is always a serious loss of Brownies when a regiment leaves Hongkong until Brownies from the incoming regiment take their place. But to the enthusiasm of the Guides and Guides that we look forward to the rapid increase of numbers. It is impossible for us to develop new Chinese Companies with the very small proportion of British girls to our total numbers. The number of English children in Hongkong is very small. But I am convinced that the roots of Guiding strike deeper year by year in this Colony."

It is stated in the report that it was found necessary to close the Italian Convent Company (6th Hongkong) owing to insufficient numbers. A new Girl Guide Company was formed at Holy Spirit School with Mrs. Herklot as Captain.

Also a request was received to re-form a Company at Mui Pong Girls' College, and this was gladly accepted. Miss Q. Fung becoming Captain.

The following are extracts from the report of the year's activities: His Excellency The Governor and Lady Peel again invited the Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies to tea at Mountain Lodge on 25th August. During the afternoon Lady Peel presented, on behalf of the Guides, a "Gold Thanks Badge" to the Rev. G. T. Walbridge.

The Colony Commissioner received the report of an O.N.C. from His Majesty the King on the occasion of the New Year Honours. The investiture took place in the presence of a large gathering including many Guide friends. Lady Southern was invited by her husband, Mr. H. H. Southern, to administer the Government at the time, and in the course of the ceremony Sir Thomas mentioned that the honour was conferred largely in recognition of Lady Southern's services to the Guide Movement in Ceylon and Hongkong.

A Rally was held at Sandilands Hut on Saturday, 24th November, parents and friends being invited. Lady Peel arrived at four o'clock and was received by Lady Southern, the Brownies forming a Guard of Honour.

The other half of the evening was spent in the Totem Competition so after tea Lady Peel kindly presented the Totem to 1st Kowloon Pack. Two Packs—1st Hongkong and 5th Hongkong—were tied for the place of "Runners-up."

The Annual General Meeting was held at Sandilands Hut on 29th November with Lady Southern in the chair. This Competition took place at Sandilands Hut on 11th March, each Company sending six Guides to take part. The test was evolved by Mrs. H. H. Southern, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. H. H. Hughes, and was judged by them. Marks were given for the following points: Inspection, Marching, Initiative, Dancing, Observation, Flag, Knots, Nature Study, and Ambulance. 1st Kowloon were the winners and the runners-up were 3rd Hongkong.

The Jamborally

The outstanding event of the year was the Jamborally and Guide Jamborally, in honour of His Majesty's Silver Jubilee. H.E. Sir William Peel took the salute in the March Past, after which Lady Peel presented the new Colony Standard to Lady Southern. Both His Excellency and Lady Peel were present.

Gold Thanks Badges as an acknowledgment of all the kindness they had shown to the two Movements in Hongkong.

It was a matter of deepest regret to all of us to hear of the death of our staunch friend, Mrs. R. H. Dyer, who was a supporter of the Movement in many ways. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Mr. Dyer in his grievous loss.

We have to record some changes in the Executive Committee. Mrs. H. H. Owen Hughes acted as Equipment Secretary for some months until Mrs. Griffith returned from leave. Unfortunately the latter has had to resign but we are pleased to welcome Mrs. C. W. E. Bishop as her successor.

Mrs. K. S. Robertson, Secretary, who Miss Buckwell went on leave and has continued until June. Mrs. R. H. Wild has now undertaken this work. We regret to record the resignation of Mrs. H. H. Griffith-Greagh who has been Honorary Treasurer. To all these ladies we express our most grateful thanks for their valuable assistance.

Lady Southern suggested that we should have a Colony Standard, and this has been adopted. The Standard is a blue sash embroidered with the Chinese motto, and carried out in a blue sash embroidered with the Chinese motto, and carried out in a blue sash embroidered with the Chinese motto.

FINE GYMNASIUM

NOW BEING ERECTED AT UNIVERSITY

A building which will prove of great use and benefit to all sections of undergraduates at the Hongkong University has just been begun on the site of the disused football ground.

The building is a gymnasium designed by Messrs. Leigh and Oranger and being built by the Sang Hoi Construction Company. It should be completed by the end of May, and will then provide an indoor sports and exercising area for students from all the hostels, centrally situated as it is to all of them.

The oak parquet floor of the gymnasium will be 80 feet by 50 feet and will be laid on a concrete base at once, each of some 30 or more members; or for a very large number of students to work independently. The floor will be fitted with all the modern appliances of a gymnasium by the architects.

There is room provided in the gallery for more than 100 spectators who will be accommodated just over the entrance hall—while those actually using the "gym" will enter through side doors, a separate one being provided for women and for the men.

The floor of the gymnasium is sufficiently large to allow a full-sized basketball court being laid out on it, and a further basketball ground together with tennis courts, will be built on the remainder of the ground available.

Built of Brick

The building itself will be of brick with a tiled roof, while five large glass doors will lead on to the verandah, facing the playing fields. The lighting of the building has been provided for by five large windows above these doors and other windows on the opposite side of the building and high on the wall.

The entire cost of the building will be $37,000 and this has been provided by Mr. Eu Tong-seng, who made the original generous offer of providing $30,000 and then supplied the further necessary funds when it was found the building would cost slightly more than was anticipated.

It is hoped that within the near future a swimming pool of Olympic proportions will be added to the gymnasium and provision for this has been allowed.

The pool, the cost of which would not be very great and certainly much less than $10,000, would be situated at one end of the gymnasium. Between the pool and the building would be a covered spectators' stand, while on the other side of the proposed pool is a strip of grass, followed by an embankment which would keep winds off the swimmers.

Boon to Students

The whole of the new building is pleasing in appearance and its design will make it of great utility to students, especially should the scheme for building the pool come to fruition.

Further plans which await the generosity of a Hongkong citizen before they are proceeded with, are in the hands of Messrs. Leigh and Oranger—they are the plans for another school to all the girls who now exist between the Peol Engineering School and the Ho Tung Workshop. The design of a fine building for this site has been prepared, but unfortunately there is no hope of proceeding with the work, however badly in need of the added space the University may be, until someone is willing to provide the necessary funds.

Magazines were greatly appreciated. This year we have been glad to welcome a large number of visitors than usual. Miss Hannah and Miss Illingworth, to whose visit reference is made in the "Foreword," spent about five weeks in Hongkong, also we enjoyed meeting the following ladies who were passing through the Colony:—Mrs. Gull, Miss Fraser, Mrs. Roper, Mrs. Leonard Wyburd, Miss Susan Tuford, Lady Manning, Miss Morse, and Mrs. Charles Buckley.

Expression of Thanks

We have to thank many friends who have helped us from time to time but feel that mention should be made of Mr. E. L. Ho, C.A., who has graciously audited our accounts. Hon. Mr. C. G. There has been an increase available this year in the number of bachelors. The examinations for Chinese and English were held on January 1st. Miss K. W. A. Edwards of the Public Works Department have given advice and practical supervision on several occasions in connection with work at the Hut. Miss Alabaster, Miss Monckton and Mr. Riddock have given us valuable assistance in various ways.

We gratefully acknowledge a donation to the funds from Mrs. K. H. Digby.

FALSE PRETENCES

YOUNG INDIAN CONVICTED ON TWO COUNTS

Remarking that defendant's conduct in the case had been despicable, and that he was so angry that he could not safely pass sentence on him, Mr. Justice Jones sentenced Gajjan Singh, 22, unemployed, until this morning, after having convicted him on two charges of obtaining money and a bottle of whisky by false pretences on January 18 and 19. The case was heard at the Kowloon Magistrate's yesterday afternoon.

It was alleged that on January 9 defendant obtained a bottle of "House of Lords" whisky from the complainant, Mr. A. San Jose and Mrs. Foster Wong, who were partners of the International Boarding House, No. 67 and No. 69, Nathan Road, by pretending that it was to be given as a present to the first bailiff of the Supreme Court, with whom the defendant would use his influence to connect with a distress warrant against the Boarding House. It was alleged in a second charge that, by means of the same pretences, defendant obtained the sum of $20 from the complainants on January 10.

Detective-Sub-Inspector L. Whant appeared for the prosecution and stated that on January 3 a distress warrant was issued against the complainants by their landlord for non-payment of rent. On January 9 the two went to moneylenders at No. 10 Queen's Road, and there they saw defendant but did not converse with him.

After having finished their business the complainants went to a cafe in Juss Vieux Road and there they again saw defendant. He was asked to join them and he was told about the distress warrant, and he told them that he might be able to assist them.

Promised a Loan

Defendant later went with Mrs. Wong to see the landlord and asked him to extend the date of the warrant but he refused. Defendant then went with Mrs. Wong to the International Boarding House and made her two complainants believe that he was a wealthy man and produced an I.O.U. for $500 which was signed by a business man. He asked the complainants whether they knew this man and where he lived, and promised them a loan of $500 if they would take him to where he lived.

Mrs. Wong stated that she knew where the man lived and took the defendant to Lanchuk Road to find him, but failed to do so. She left defendant about 6 p.m. and at 7 p.m. the same night defendant went back to the boarding house and told Mrs. Wong that it was necessary to give a bottle of whisky to the first bailiff at the Supreme Court in order to get him to extend the warrant.

A bottle of whisky was bought, but defendant said that that was not the kind that the bailiff liked and wrote out a brand of whisky on a slip, and a bottle of House of Lords whisky was purchased. This was handed to defendant in the presence of both complainants.

On the same night at 1 a.m. (January 10) defendant returned to the boarding house and saw Mrs. Wong, and he asked to see Dr. Jose, who he was asked to see Dr. Jose's room where he asked for $50. Eventually he was given $20 to give to the first bailiff as a present for favours received from him. The money consisted of one $10 note, a $5 note, and five $1 notes.

Did Not Turn Up

On receiving the money defendant told Mrs. Wong to accompany him and see him hand the money to the bailiff, but when they got outside defendant turned back and asked Mrs. Wong to wait for him. He then told Mrs. Wong to go to the Supreme Court at 8 a.m. As arranged, complainant went to meet defendant but she waited until 11 a.m. and he did not turn up.

Complainant then went and made inquiries herself, and found that the first bailiff could not grant an extension for the stay of the execution of the distress warrant, so she went out and at No. 10 Queen's Road she saw defendant and asked him why he was fooling her. Defendant told complainant not to make so much noise and asked her to go home and he would go and see her. The woman went home but did not see the man again.

Dr. Jose consulted his solicitors about the matter and he was advised that if he saw defendant he was to arrest him and take him to the nearest police station. On Sunday morning (January 12) Dr. Jose went to No. 67 and 69 Nathan Road, which was a garage, where defendant lived and took him to the No. 2 Police Station where they saw Detective-Sergeant Fitches. Later defendant was sent to Tsimshatsui.

Corporative evidence was given by the complainants and Detective-Sergeant D. Fitches.

Mr. H. J. Millington, bailiff of the Supreme Court, deposed that he had a distress warrant in respect of No. 67 and 69 Nathan Road which was executed on January 4. Actually the warrant gave five days in which to pay, but eight days would have been given.

On January 14 the warrant was returned and then withdrawn. It was done through solicitors and the landlord.

Witness knew defendant as being the son of a money-lender, and he had taken summonses to witness at various times to be registered. Witness had not seen defendant for three or four weeks.

Witness absolutely denied that he ever asked defendant for $50 or $20 in connection with the warrant. Defendant elected to give evidence and alleged that the whisky was given to him as a present by Mrs. Wong.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Jan. 20. (Swan, Culbertson and Fritz) Wall Street Journal comments: "The Wall Street Journal predicts continued near railroad financing and refunding during the year, due to the improved financial outlook. Cement box-office receipts continue their high level. Short interest has increased substantially. Referring to the market outlook, the Journal says: 'All ammunition for a speculative movement is out-running the business pace at present.' The Journal points out that the coming election is of growing importance to the market and hence this may need some discounting."

Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow Jones Summary of yesterday's market: The market to-day was irregular, but rallied near the close, inspired by the announcement that the directors of the Greyhound Corporation had approved a four into one stock split. Utility issues fluctuated when the Supreme Court judges met, but prices closed about unchanged when it was learned that the Court's decision regarding the TVA was not rendered. Steel issues rallied slightly on an announcement by the Iron and Steel Institute of a slight increase in operations. Numerous special issues registered gains, while oils were quiet, but firm. Both Curb stocks and bonds were irregularly lower.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: The market was irregular with a firm undertone. The Supreme Court's ruling on the TVA has been delayed until February 3rd, at the earliest. Warner Brothers have earned 25 cents per share for the 13 weeks ended November 30th, against a loss of $143,751 during the corresponding period of last year. The TIMES business index is 90.7 for the week ended January 14th, against the record figure of 96.6 for the previous week and 86.1 during the corresponding week of last year. The United Aircraft Corporation proposes sales of additional common shares for working capital purposes.

Cotton: It is reported that the Supreme Court has ordered the Administration to refund the Processing Taxes. There is some talk about opening the Cotton Pool to the market. "Spot" are strong. The market is awaiting Washington developments.

Wheat: Continued steadiness of May wheat is probable. The large acreage and favorable conditions of the new-crop are restraining factors. The visible supply in Canada has decreased by 2,482,000 bushels and in the United States the visible supply has decreased by 1,371,000 bushels.

Corn: The visible supply shows an increase of 108,000 bushels.

Rubber: There is a resumption of factory buying, but speculative interests are inclined to await the French Cabinet situation.

SIR FREDERICK MAZE'S VEHEMENT PROTEST

Shanghai, Jan. 20. The report that attempts are being made in North China to interfere with the administration of the Customs and to retain the Customs revenues, has prompted the Inspector-General of Maritime Customs, Sir Frederick Maze, to notify the Commissioner of Customs in Peking that there cannot be countenance.

Sir Frederick Maze points out that such action would adversely affect the indemnity and loan service, and cause general confusion and uncertainty in respect of China's domestic and foreign trade.—Reuter.

and also alleged that she gave the money to him as a personal loan. Natleast Type of Criminal

In convicting defendant his Worship said: "You are convicted on the basis of the evidence of the two complainants and the evidence of the first bailiff of the Supreme Court. I have had the misfortune to see before me. Not only do you lie to save your own skin but you lie to get other people into trouble."

"In August 1935 you came before me and were bound over to the sum of $25 for six months for disorderly conduct by fighting. On December 1 you appeared at the Central Police Court for fighting again; you were found guilty by my brother, Mr. Schofield, and he notes that you told a very unconvincing story which I, Mr. Schofield, way of saying you are a liar, which I also say."

"Is there anything you want to say for yourself?"

Defendant: "No, your Worship."

The Magistrate: "Your conduct has been so despicable in this case, you are not fit to be a citizen. I shall, safely pass sentence on you now. You will come before me to-morrow after I have slept over it."

A BELOVED MONARCH

Not only throughout the Empire over whose destinies he so long and ably ruled, but the wide world over, will the passing of His Majesty King George the Fifth be deeply mourned. His death overshadows all other news today, and here in Hongkong no less than in other parts of the Empire very real sympathy will be felt for the bereaved Queen and the other members of the Royal Family in the heavy loss which they have been called upon to bear. Beloved by his people, whose deep affection for their monarch was so strikingly evidenced during the celebration of his Silver Jubilee, the late King will go down in history as George the Wise. The reign now ended was marked by many troublous times—none more tragic and disastrous than the Great War—but King George the Fifth, by his calmness, his urbanity, his level-headedness, and his high integrity of purpose, in dark days and peaceful times alike, won a measure of love and popularity that few British monarchs ever enjoyed. Not robust physically, the late King really never completely recovered from his serious illness in 1928, which left him extremely susceptible to chest trouble, of which he had had recurring attacks on several occasions since. That illness of six years ago brought both King and people to a full realisation of the affection that existed between them. Throughout the following trouble-fraught years of worldwide depression—when the King more than once took the role of a mere figurehead and exercised his influence in political and economic crises that menaced the Empire's welfare—the sovereign's personal popularity became further enhanced. Of his contribution to his day and time, history will give us a truer perspective than is possible now. But it can be said that as a ruler he marched steadily with public opinion and the advancement of democratic principles. If he had a good insight into his prerogative, he regarded it as his duty, as a constitutional monarch, loyally to

By F. G. Prince-White

IT was at Sandringham, where the peaceful sound of bells ring over Norfolk's woods and fields, and the sound of them is as the very voice of that corner of England which has never lost its ancient quietude, that the King died. He dearly loved this corner of England.

It was at Sandringham that the late King was seen as "The First country gentleman in Europe," as he was called in a singularly well-written and illuminating publication by J. Wontworth Day, published last month, "King George V as a Sportsman."

In its pages we see the late King as the personification of a nation of sportsmen, graciously at home with the staunch-souled, simple-hearted Norfolk folk, savouring full contentment with old friends, his gun and his dogs.

Very beautifully—the author conveys the spirit of the late King's home "on this north-east shoulder of Norfolk, which butts into the North Sea bluntly," where "we meet the first of the Arctic winds, the force and the thunder of seas that roll without a break between here and Iceland." He likes to "think that it is because Norfolk is still Norfolk it is still Old England, stoutly jealous of itself, content to take time as time comes, determined to build to last."

Of the country in which Sandringham stands imbued with grace and dignity, he says:

There is something in its peace and space, a spirit about its little villages and crawling creeks, its lawns, its ploughlands gull-windiness on its heaths and a stateliness about its little old churches—old as the Normans—which puts the world in proper perspective. These old acres see Time with the wise eyes of age. A thousand years ago Sandringham saw the Vikings bench their ships. It saw the ravens fly at the masthead, the fighting in waves, that ghastly fighting in the fog, those battles on the blasted heath which Trevelyan put into immortal English. It saw thorns and hawthorn go up in smoke and flame. And it was the forging of a new England.

He paints a sharp picture of "this wild and lonely coast, this place which seems still to breed a bleak independence," and points to the sturdiness of the cottages of Sandringham, Snettisham, Wells, Blakeney, Cley, and Morston—fine names, breathing romance. And he speaks of "the great barns and the farm walls, the maltings and the warehouses that stand sturdily down to the creek's edge."

"So," he says truly, "one can imagine no more fitting county for the private home of the King of England. The country has character. Its face has not been spoiled. Its coastline is still wild. Its winds are keen. There is much in it of beauty and little of softness."

Nowhere was the King happier than at Sandringham, that pleasant but not too large house, set in the heart of its great estate, ringed by its little homely villages, pheasants crowing on ling. Here is a vivid glimpse of him out where "the curlew rise in clouds and go shrieking up the lonely coast."

Pigeons gossip loudly in the branches of trees, and "some-where in the background there is the hum of lawn-mowers, the barking of spaniels, the stamp and jingle of horses, a grumble of pleasant Norfolk voices." It is in this setting of unmarred tranquillity that the King was most at rest. When he emerged from it, to go where the partridges call, he was the King of sportsmen.

The county that bred Nelson produced also Coke of Holkham and "Turnip" Townshend, the twin fathers of English farming. The bred, too, Tom de Grey, fifth Lord Walsingham, one of the greatest shots that ever lived. It saw the arts of pheasant shooting and partridge driving brought to perfection. Its marshes and broads have known wildfowl in their thousands since the dawn of time.

Sandringham is, "in some measure, the quintessence of Norfolk, a mirror in little of the sport and beauty that have made the character of Englishmen."

There are fifteen thousand acres of farms and coverts, of grassy heaths where the rabbits bob about in hundreds and the first sigh in the sea wind. There are little green valleys, with a little river full of trout. There are great woods that stand like noble sentinels against the sky. There are creeks golden with gorse, murmurous with bees in summer, rusty red in winter.

In one of the late King's game-books it is recorded that, as Prince of Wales, he shot the peewits which were whipped away by the wind, the quick, acrid smell of burnt powder—and a pair are down in the fleet in sudden upflung fountains of spray.

"More fowl come, and from each trip or bunch the lonely gunner takes toll." "Soon the short flight is over. The peewits wait in the gloom. A thin, cold moon comes up over the sea. On the upland an owl hoots in the old woods. A heron cries hoarsely, the red-shank pipe. Night and the sea-wind possess the marsh.

"Homeward by the path which countless sheep and bullocks have worn across the marsh goes the fowler—George the Fifth of England, for one brief and precious hour the plain Squire of Sandringham."

If at Sandringham the King was the sportsman-squire, at Balmoral he was the friendly laird. The folk there always deeply admired not only his great prowess on the grouse moors but his vast knowledge of the birds.

In 1911, in the course of his Coronation Durbar tour of India, the late King greatly impressed everybody with his skill and coolness in big-game shooting.

Of his genius as yachtsman all men know. He revived yachting when, after the war, it seemed to be dead. Many a time it was due to his sailor's qualities that Britannia sailed to victory.

And year after year his presence at those two great national events, Epsom and Ascot, gave joy to his subjects who like nothing better than a royal win. Well may this study of the late King in the realm of sport end on a note of deep thankfulness that, from 1910 to 1936, the most turbulent quarter of a century of its history, the Empire "was led by a very human, lovable man, an English gentleman, and a sportsman of the old school whose faith and principles neither time nor wars could shake."

NOTES OF THE DAY

PRAYERS OF AN EMPIRE

The spontaneous demonstration of affection by the three little girls outside the gates of Buckingham Palace, while they waited in the cold for news of His Majesty's progress at Sandringham, sang in their sweet, child voices "God save the King," is to our mind one of the most touching incidents of these anxious days of the sovereign's illness. Possibly it typifies the feeling of the masses of the British people, that little demonstration of love. It is the sort of thing which has sanctified the bond between the Ruler and his people—"my friends, my people," as he liked to call them. Such incidents are rare because, in their nature, British people are notably undemonstrative. They hide their emotions. The older they are, the more jealously they guard their more intimate feelings, and their more sacred thoughts. However, if His Majesty and His Majesty's family, in this hour of stress, had need of a whisper from the heart of the people of the sympathy and loyalty and tender regard felt for the Sovereign, they would take comfort from the prayer sung in the chilly street before the gates of Sandringham by these three little girls.

accept the advice of his Ministers. Thus he never interfered directly in party politics, but in times of emergency his influence was always quietly exercised. He followed principles which have enabled his subjects almost to become republicans without knowing it. Were it not for this policy, that remarkable experiment, the organic union of free nations into the British Commonwealth, would never have been possible and surely could not continue. Never more so than during the late King's reign had the social instinct of his people so profoundly needed the stabilising influence of the Crown; never had a monarch risen with more excellent discretion and the exercise of real wisdom to the greatness of his occasion. To-day, King George is no more; he has been gathered to his forefathers in the fullness of his years. But he bequeaths to his successor on the Throne and to his people a rich heritage, the preservation of which will never be in doubt.

LIFE STORY OF LATE KING GEORGE V

UNEXPECTEDLY MADE HEIR TO BRITISH THRONE

Born at Marlborough House on June 3rd, 1865, the illustrious King now departed was the second son of the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra. As the junior son of the Royal House, the heavy royal responsibilities which later were to fall upon his shoulders were not then within the contemplation of his august parents, and he was educated for a naval career without thought that one day he would ascend to the Throne of the greatest Empire in the history of the world.

The sudden death of the Duke of Clarence, his elder brother, in 1892, brought him into unexpected prominence. He was then 27 years of age and, as Heir to the Throne, became a personage of leading public importance for the first time.

NOT A LINGUIST.

Of his childhood days there are few anecdotes, except that he exhibited a curious distaste for all things foreign, an aversion which extended to foreign tongues. This was reflected in the fact that he was at no time a linguist. Indeed, that he spoke no language with fluency except his own, John Neale Dalton, who was tutor to the sons of Edward VII, has related several stories of the late King's contemptuous references to the German tongue when he was scolded for lack of diligence. At the age of fourteen, he accompanied the Duke of Clarence on a three years' tour of the world in the "Bacchante" as a part of the training undertaken to equip him for his future place in the affairs of the nation.

HONGKONG VISIT.

They visited Hongkong on December 20th, 1881. On his return, he took up his naval career wholeheartedly, and served on many ships of famous names. In November, 1891, he was taken seriously ill with typhoid but made a good recovery. The death of the Duke of Clarence on January 4th, 1892, marked the end of his life in the Royal Navy.

In July of the following year, at twenty-eight, he married Princess Victoria Mary, the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Teck, amid great national rejoicing. The match was fortunate in every respect and was universally approved as the Royal Bride, like himself, was wholly British in taste and interest.

SEVEN-MONTH TOUR.

The death of Queen Victoria interrupted the plans for a short while, but early in 1901, the late King, accompanied by the Queen, sailed from Portsmouth on the famous tour of the Opium of forty-seven thousand miles, an epoch-making journey which occupied the Royal Pair for over seven months.

His first great function was the opening of the first Australian Parliament at Melbourne in the great Exhibition Building. After this had been carried out with world-wide felicitations, he proceeded to New Zealand, returning by way of South Africa and Canada, being warmly acclaimed at every point.

On his return to England he was entertained by the Corporation of London, and made a remarkable speech, clearly illustrating the immense value of the tour from the viewpoint of personal knowledge and interest. At the time, over 30 years ago, he stressed a difficulty, which even to-day confronts the Dominions, the want of population. He pointed out that huge areas exist, rich in minerals or capable of fruitful cultivation, calling for development, though he emphasized that the emigrants must be suitable.

"By this means," he said, "we may still further strengthen, or at all events race, that unity of sentiment and purpose, that feeling of common loyalty and obligation, which knit together and alone can maintain the integrity of our Empire."

THE ACCESSION.

In the same year he was created Prince of Wales. Much public work of importance fell to his lot during the next few years, and he rapidly gained a reputation as one of the most conscientious and hard-working Princes British has ever had.

On the death of his father on May 6th, 1910, he became King and was crowned in Westminster Abbey on June 22nd, 1911.

In December, 1911, the King and Queen visited India, and at the Great Delhi Durbar, His late Majesty was proclaimed Emperor of India. This, incidentally, was the first visit of a reigning Sovereign to Britain's Overseas Dominions and it was greeted by great outward manifestations of loyalty and enthusiasm.

THE WORLD WAR.

It was, however, the late King's destiny to reign during a period of the greatest crisis in the history of the world. Three years after his triumph in India, the British Empire, so brilliantly extended by Victoria, and consolidated by his father, was launched into the Great War and this supreme test (to which were added serious troubles in India, Ireland and Egypt) was survived magnificently.

The King and Queen threw their energies wholeheartedly into aiding all efforts for the amelioration of those suffering poverty and bereavement, while the late King bore his own anxieties in the presence in France of an impulsive Heir, and on the North Sea, of one of his younger sons. Among the things for which he will be remembered are the abolition of all German titles in the British Royal Family, and the creation of the Royal House of Windsor by special decree.

PREVIOUS ILLNESS.

The whole Empire was thrown into a state of alarm and anxiety when the late King suffered a severe illness in 1928, from the full effects of which he did not completely recover until 1930. His Majesty had attended the Armistice Day ceremony at the Cenotaph on November 11th, 1928, and ten days later it was announced that he was confined to bed with a cold and fever. The illness took a disquieting turn within a few days, some congestion of the lung being recorded. The infection later spread, and anxiety increased when, on November 30th, his doctors announced that there was a marked decline in the strength of the heart.

On December 4th, a meeting of the Privy Council was held in a room adjoining His Majesty's bedroom, and His Majesty signed an Order-in-Council appointing the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Primate, the Prime Minister and the Lord Chancellor as Counsellors of State in the emergency.

Then followed many anxious days, an operation having to be performed for drainage of the right side of the chest. On December 19th, the two doctors attending His Majesty announced that the patient's progress was established on a firmer basis, but His Majesty again had a relapse on the 27th, after which he made slow progress, until, early in February, he was able to be moved by motor ambulance to Bognor.

THANKSGIVING.

His Majesty returned to Windsor in May, but on the last day of that month he was again confined to his bed with a feverish attack, an abscess having formed under the old scar. The royal patient made slow progress after this, but he was "unwell" that the Thanksgiving Service arranged for June 16th had to be postponed. Eventually, however, it was held at Westminster Abbey, on July 7th, His Majesty and other members of the Royal Family attending.

NEAR TO HEART OF PEOPLE.

The late King George also stood very near to the heart of his people in his decision to ally the Royal Family with the noble families of Great Britain by the marriages of Princess Patricia, Princess Mary, the Duke of York, and the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent.

His most suitable epitaph is probably contained in the sum of many of a writer who described the late King as really a human man, husband and father. Simplicity was the hall-mark of all he said and did. Not brilliant, he still was serenely confident of his ability to surmount all unresolved difficulties, and he did so by devoting his life and soul to his job. Unexpectedly a King, he never once flinched from the heavy trials of his public responsibilities, fulfilling them without regard to personal feeling or exertion. His activities in the interests of the realm earned for him the precious esteem and affection of the whole Empire.

NEW KING LOVED BY EMPIRE

RECORD OF SERVICE AS PRINCE

SOLDIER AND SPORTSMAN

The man who becomes King Edward VIII today is 42 years of age, a brilliant soldier, a fine sportsman and one of the most loved princes ever to ascend the throne of Britain.

A brief biography of His Majesty tells us that he received his naval training at Osborne and Dartmouth, that he was invested as Prince of Wales at Carnarvon in 1911.

On the eve of a tour to Germany in 1913 he was promoted to lieutenant in the Royal Navy, but at this stage he went to Magdalen College, Oxford, for an undergraduate course. The following year, in November, 1914, he was serving with the British Armies in France, attached to Sir John French's staff.

During the war he served with zeal and marked ability, and was the bearer of the historic despatch from

TERRIBLE WINTER IN AMERICA

Over 100 Killed As Direct Result

New York, Jan. 20. Over a hundred deaths have been caused by arctic weather which is being experienced all over the country.

Fifty-eight of these deaths occurred in motor accidents, owing to the appalling road conditions.

Intense cold, accompanied by snowstorms and tornadoes, continue everywhere.

Sir John French respecting the turn of the fighting tide at Egypt. In 1916 he served in Egypt with the British forces and in the following winter was in Italy, at the front when the great Austrian offensive crumpled the Italian defences. He saw that ghastly retreat.

He paid his first visit to Canada and the United States in 1919 and won universal popularity there. He was much interested in Canadian farming, and himself stocked a great ranch in Alberta where his cattle and horses have taken ribbons for years. His welcome in India, Japan and the East generally was no less warm than that in Canada and America. This was in 1922. The following year he was equally busy. He toured South Africa and South America in 1925.

He returned in haste from East Africa in 1928, when his father, the late King, was first stricken. He was one of the Counsellors of State appointed at that time.

With Prince George he toured South America again in 1931. By this time he was keenly interested in aviation and the following year he was appointed Honorary Air Commodore-in-Chief of the squadrons comprising the auxiliary Air Force. If the popularity of the prince his will be a great name in English history.

EXPLOSION IN SHAI

ONE KILLED AND 18 INJURED

Shanghai, Jan. 21. One person was killed and 18 injured, four seriously, by a mysterious explosion during a small oil fire at the Yangchow Road sub-station of the Shanghai Power Company.

Mr. A. H. Morton, second officer of the Yangtsepo Fire Station, was severely burned about the head and body, and it is doubtful whether he will recover.

Eleven other firemen and three members of the Police Force were among those injured. The property damage is not large despite the fierce blaze following the explosion.

HU HAN-MIN TO STAY WILL SOON LEAVE FOR CANTON

Canton, Jan. 20. General Chan Chai-long and other South West leaders returned to Canton to-night, but Mr. Hu Han-min has decided to postpone his visit until after Chinese New Year.

It is officially indicated that the latter will go to Nanking after a few days stay in Canton. Interviewed, Mr. Isiao Fu-chien, the aged Kuomintang leader, admitted the possibility of his going to Nanking together with Mr. Hu Han-min, but the final decision will not be made until he has conferred with Mr. Hu Han-min.

It is officially stated that Mr. Wang Chung-hui, who resigned from the League of Nations, will leave for China on February 2, arriving in Hongkong on February 27.

Leaders' Movement

At nine o'clock yesterday morning General Chan Chai-long, Canton's Commander-in-Chief, accompanied by Lieut. General Lin Shih-ching, and Colonel C. W. Young, paid a friendly visit to Mr. R. H. Kotewall and stayed there for over an hour.

General Chan Chai-long later called on Sir Shou Chow, remaining for a short while as the Canton leader had to leave for Canton the same morning.

The Canton General and party later proceeded to Queen's Pier and embarked on the Government launch Britannia, to go aboard the Chinese R. H. Kotewall was on the wharf to greet the General.

ENGLAND LUCKY

TO DRAW SECOND TEST MATCH

LANGRIDGE THE SAVIOUR

Wellington, Jan. 20. The second unofficial cricket test match between New Zealand and England was drawn.

In the first innings New Zealand made 242 runs to which England replied with a total of 156, and at the close of play on Saturday New Zealand had made 11 without loss.

To-day the home side took the total to 229 for three wickets, when the declaration was applied. Of the total J. L. Kerr made 105 without losing his wicket. He played carefully, but bright cricket and took three hours in which to score his runs, made principally by leg glances and drives. He had twelve fours in his innings.

In partnership with H. G. Vivian he put on 190 runs for the third wicket, scored in 135 minutes. Vivian had 96 to his credit when dismissed. He made the majority of his runs from drives through cover. He hit ten fours.

At the close of play the England side made 130 runs for seven wickets. James Langridge, the Sussex all rounder, who scored 61 not out, robbed the New Zealanders of a glorious victory. He was at the wickets for 103 minutes and hit eight fours. He displayed sterling defence. Roberts took three of the wickets for 93 runs.—Reuter.

Four cases of Diphtheria (one imported) and three cases of Typhoid were reported to the Health authorities during the week-end.

YACHTING CHAMPIONSHIP FOR CIGALE

LADIES' EVENT

The Fourth Championship Cruisers took place on Sunday. The race for "W" Class had to be abandoned because no vessel finished before the time limit of 7.30 p.m. In the Cruiser Class, which commenced at 10 a.m., La Cigale came in first, sailed by Mr. N. Croucher.

ALL ABOUT SHANGHAI HOCKEY PLAYERS

U. Berg (Germans)—Left Wing. Played for the Germans since the team entered the league a few years ago. Is very fast, tricky and centres powerfully. Deserves her position from the splendid exhibition she gave in the trials.

E. McCracken and M. McCracken, Sisters (S.A.S.): left-inside and right-inside respectively. Both still attending the American School. The astute and best forwards in their side. Rarely miss opportunities when near the "D". Possess fine passing movements.

J. Bloomfield (S. Girls): Centre-forward. Captain of her team last year when it won the Jones Shield. A capable leader; distributes the ball well to her inside forwards and has the knack of keeping the players together. Is dangerous inside the circle. Did not go to Hongkong last February on account of work.

E. Little (S. Girls): Right Wing. Formerly of the American School where she learnt her hockey. Member of the Sports Girl last season when it won the Jones Shield. Is a capable right wing, very aggressive and pushing. Understands her position well, is very elusive and dangerous when within the 25 line as she sends accurate and powerful centres to her inside players. Has earned her position by fine showing during the trials.

He said to me: "What about a quick one?" I said to him: "I never have a quick one, I only drink JOHNNIE WALKER—and that's too good to hurry over..."

The very strength and character of the Highlands have found their way into Johnnie Walker whisky. And naturally! Here is a whisky which has matured during the slow march of years. Here is a whisky blended with a skill that's come down through four generations. This is the explanation of the unusual smoothness of flavour which stamps unmistakably every bottle of Johnnie Walker.

AS SEEN BY THE CAMERA'S EYE

Four Royal Generations: Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, King George V and King Edward VIII.

The Late King George V and the Queen, then Prince and Princess of Wales.

Two photographs of the Late King as a nautical Prince during his childhood.

The Late King, long before he was thought of as an heir to the Throne, was destined for a naval career, and his childhood was spent in naval suits.

When Queen Victoria celebrated her Diamond Jubilee, the Late King George V and his bride were not yet Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince Clarence, heir to the Throne, still living.

"HONI SOIT QUI MAL Y PENSE." A Coronation photograph of the late King George V and Queen Mary.

The photograph above shows the Late King George V and Queen Mary directly after their Coronation, the Silver Jubilee of which was celebrated less than twelve months ago.

During his reign of just over 25 years, the greatest war in the history of civilisation took place. The photograph shows His Late Majesty and Marshal Foch, also dead, in France in 1917.

The death of the Dowager Queen Alexandra, mother of the late King, was a tragic blow to the Royal Family. Photograph shows Queen Alexandra's funeral.

SERIAL STORY—

BARGAIN BRIDIE

by KATHARINE HAVLAND-TAYLOR

CHAPTER XXXV

Bob rose. "Time for me to be getting on," he said. "I'm a bit tired—always have been and I've always known it."

Would that tell Colvin anything? Bob wondered. He didn't want him to know. Elinor was happy.

"Why, you're one of the best friends I've ever had!" Elinor protested warmly.

For a moment Barrett wondered her voice seemed sincere. Then he smiled, remembering Lida's art. This girl was a clever actress as her mother. That was all.

He rose, bowing stiffly, as Bob's father said his farewells.

"See you again, perhaps," said Bob. "If you're going to be down here for a time?"

"Perhaps," said Barrett. "Driving his low, open car toward the inn where he was putting up, Bob decided that he'd better be off and give Elinor her full chance. Surely a man who was with her each day could know her! He couldn't be so sure that Lord, wouldn't Colvin freeze him if he should try such a thing? He could almost feel the congealing air. Nevertheless Bob decided that he'd better be off. He knew if Colvin were hurting her, he'd knock Colvin down, sit on his chest and tell him, if he had to. He'd give them a month, then nose around a bit and find out how things stood. Maybe Bessie Thorne could help him out if help were needed. Bessie was a peach and she did the most adorable work with human maladjustment. While cleverer souls who would have caught the job spoke of her with affectionate amusement as "dear, good, bungling Bessie."

After dinner and some telephoning to arrange north-bound reservations, Bob did the worst thing he could have done. He left for New York. He honestly made him see this as the best thing for all concerned. He didn't for a moment imagine that Barrett Colvin would convert his departure into a confession of guilt.

Bob paid his hotel bill, left instructions for shipping his car and was driven to the station to board a hotel sleeping car. He lay awake most of the night, arguing out the situation with himself.

He could not forget his menace of Colvin's attitude because it meant Elinor. She was a peach and she had a rotten hard break. She had always been surrounded by the sort of life she loathed. Damn it, if he had to he would have it out with Colvin.

He'd say, "Look here, you give Elinor a square deal or—" He planned on it. He'd blunt manner of a young man, long distance swimming and golf trophies than of diplomacy.

Miss Hemmingway, the nurse, came to the terrace after Bob had gone.

Miss Hemmingway was a compound of stately starched, rustling, then smooth hair, pert, small cap and ready smile that told nothing with scientific accuracy. Her smile the last few days had been as artificial as the stiffness of her raiment. She had been nursing for 12 years, but she still felt the oppression that comes from being a patient. She always felt it more when she had had the patient for a long while and she'd been on this case several months.

She had pitied Bentwell Stafford at first, knowing him through Lida. Now, pity being akin to love, she really cared for him as a poor, broken human being who had led a horrible life with "that woman," and who had not enough reserve strength to make the fight to get well. Elinor she worshipped. And Elinor, she knew, was going to take what lay ahead with the keenest suffering.

On the terrace she shook hands with Mr. Colvin after expressing mild surprise at seeing him. He was a wonderful looking man, she thought. It was seldom one saw two such fine looking people together.

Miss Hemmingway stood with cool, gentle fingers on Bentwell's thin wrist, eyes on her watch. Then she said, "Well, I think we'll put you to bed for your dinner. You've had a full day with all these visitors."

Bentwell nodded. He knew he wasn't equal to much more effort. Elinor murmured her disappointment and Barrett, seconded it, half-ashamed. He could not be sorry that he was to dine alone with Elinor.

At eight they sat down at a cozy little table in a small, attractive dining room. Tall candles with flames dancing gently in the moving air and a low bowl of flowers made a frame for Elinor's face. She wore a primrose frock of soft chiffon and her hair was dressed low as he liked it. She smiled at him and sighed. She was so happy! Tremulously, unbelievably happy!

"It was so good of you to come!" she said.

"It's good to be here," he answered honestly. As always he was weakened under her spell. Nothing mattered now to him but the knowledge that she was near.

He gave her the message Higgins had sent—that the servants on a trip with Lida. That alienated her for several seconds.

Elinor asked about his work and he told her what he had been doing. He was surprised to find that she knew a good deal about it.

He didn't know you were interested in that sort of thing," he said slowly.

"But it's your work—" she said, and laughed. "Since coming down here I've read everything you've written that I could lay my hands on. I think you write beautifully!"

"Why—my dear child—I can't write at all!"

"But you can!" she disputed firmly. "I think you'd like expedition work," he said. He had never considered taking her on a trip with him. If he could do that what a trip it would be!

"I've often dreamed about something of that sort," she said. "I only know one kind of life—and it's such a narrow kind. When I was little my happiest day dream was imagining I had been shipwrecked on a desert island where there were no bills and no debts—just honesty and congenial savages!"

"There ain't no such animals!" he said, laughing.

"I'd be glad to trade poisoned arrows for poisoned talk," she assured him. "I know I'd like them better!"

They had their coffee in the living room, a charmingly simple place of gay chintz, softened in tone by the low lights. French doors opened to the terrace and the soft night breeze crept in to stir the hangings, making roses and lilacs nod in their vases. Elinor sat on a low stool and Barrett in a deep chair, leaning forward toward her.

"I want to have a long talk with you," he said after the maid had left a coffee tray on the low table near Elinor.

"I want to talk to you, too," she confessed. "She was going to tell him she could not endure much more of this 'blowing hot and then cold.' It must be one thing or the other continually, in order to make the rest of the time they were to spend together endurable.

He could soften her so utterly by being as he was now. Then when he grew cold again, she suffered doubly. She would tell him that frankly, she had decided, admitting that she was happier when they were friends than she had ever been before. (To Be Continued.)

To Avoid Influenza.

A medical writer, speaking of the after effects of influenza, says—"It is astonishing the number of people who have been crippled in health for years after an attack." Now that influenza is again prevalent, therefore, it is a wise precaution to build up the system so that it may be ready to protect itself against invasion by this dread disease.

Your best safeguard against influenza is not to allow yourself to become run down. Health and strength are dependent upon a plentiful supply of rich, red blood. Your best ally in sustaining the system in robust health is a tonic capable of creating such blood, and of such tonic there is none better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The prescription of a British physician, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been proved by clinical tests rapidly to increase the number of red blood corpuscles, which, in turn, carry haemoglobin, that substance which conveys oxygen from the lungs and nutriment from the food digested, to all the cells and tissues of the body, thereby building up and revitalizing the whole system.

Build up your health therefore with the world famous tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills; they will surely do you good. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

Of old, the "town-crier" made things known.

To do this he rang his bell at certain points where he could be sure of the biggest crowds. The difference between then and to-day is that circulation was indicated by the number of listeners; the advertiser of 1936 can only gauge the field his message covers by the number of newspaper readers.

Hence the reason for Chartered Accountants' Certificates of Newspaper Sales.

However much advertising may be discussed, the indisputable fact remains that newspapers must be the first charge on the advertising schedule.

The South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph give the widest possible certified coverage.

ST. DAVID'S SOCIETY*ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LOCAL BODY

The annual meeting of St. David's Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce Room last night, when the year's activities were reviewed, officers were elected for the coming year, and tentative plans were made for the work of the Society during 1936.

In the absence of Mr. A. Morris (President), Mr. E. R. Price (Vice-President) presided, and amongst those present were Mr. David Davies and Mr. E. C. Thomas (Past President), Mrs. E. V. Hooper (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer), Mr. D. F. Davies, Mr. E. Lloyd Jones, Capt. T. Jones, Capt. I. Evans and Mrs. Evans, Mr. J. G. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. H. Hall.

An apology for inability to be present was received from Capt. Owen, representative on the General Committee of the 1st. Bn. Royal Welch Fusiliers.

The annual report and statement of accounts for the year were adopted. The annual report stated, in part: "The annual dinner and dance in 1935 will long be remembered as a brilliant success and greatly redounding to the popular esteem of our President." Thanks were also expressed in the report to those who had helped at the successful Christmas social to Wales, Servicemen and members of the Mercantile Marine. The report concluded by asking members to assist the Hon. Secretary and Treasurer by regular payment of subscriptions.

Society's Dinner

In view of the fact that representatives of the 1st. Bn. The Royal Welch Fusiliers had not in previous years been able to attend the Society's annual dinner—owing to that day—it was decided to write indicating willingness to change the date of the Society's dinner if the co-operation of the Battalion could be secured on another day. St. David's Day, on March 1, falls on a Sunday this year, and in the normal course of events the Society would hold its dinner on the last day of February.

Arrangements for the dinner in 1936 were left in the hands of a small sub-committee. It was decided to place a wreath on the Cenotaph at 11 a.m. on Sunday, March 1.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. E. R. Price; Vice-President, Mr. D. F. Davies; Hon. Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. H. Hall; Committee, Mr. E. Lloyd Jones, Capt. I. Evans, Mr. J. G. Jones, Mrs. E. V. Hooper, Mrs. Westlake and Capt. Owen (representing the 1st. Bn. The Royal Welch Fusiliers).

The Society's thanks were expressed to Mrs. E. V. Hooper, who relinquished the position of Hon. Secretary and Treasurer on her impending departure on leave, for her excellent work on behalf of the Society.

WHARF TRAGEDY*PASSENGER SLIPS AND FALLS INTO WATER

A verdict of death by misadventure was returned by a jury at a Coroner's inquest before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, into the death of Chung Fook, aged 55 years, who fell off the gang-plank of the steamer Tai Lee on the night of December 6 and died in hospital the following morning.

The jury also made a recommendation that gangways for third class passengers should be a bit wider and should possess railings which might be detachable, failing which they should have a cargo net stretched under the gangway.

The jury comprised Messrs. S. S. Perry (Foreman), A. C. I. Bowker and A. Stalker.

Before evidence was taken, the Coroner and jury visited the scene of the accident at the Tai Ping wharf, Connaught Road West.

Evidence was given by Mr. G. H. Thomas that the man was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital in an unconscious condition and died at 7.05 a.m. on December 10. A post mortem examination revealed no external injuries, but internally the lungs and air tubes contained water. Death was due to the effects of immersion in water causing partial asphyxia leading to heart failure.

Sergeant Guild stated that he went to the Government Civil Hospital about 12.15 a.m. on December 10 and there saw deceased. He also saw Chung Shan, nephew of the deceased, who went with him to the Ping On wharf where the steamer Tai Lee was, and there pointed out how the deceased had fallen off the gangway. Death was due to the effects of immersion in water causing partial asphyxia leading to heart failure.

Slipped Off Gangway

Mr. Schofield next read out the statement made by Chung Shan, who had left for Singapore.

In the statement Chung Shan said that his uncle and himself were on their way to Singapore to do farm work. They left Kowloon on December 9 and arrived in Hongkong about 11 p.m. the same day. The ship was very crowded, and after the deceased had fallen off the gangway, the ship was lowered the passengers disembarked. After twenty or thirty passengers had disembarked, the deceased preceded him, and he suddenly saw his uncle slip and fall into the water. He shouted "save life," and some coolies rushed his uncle out of the water and carried him to the wharf, where he was placed in an ambulance and taken to hospital.

In his summing-up, Mr. Schofield pointed out to the jury that the gangway had no rails and was very steep at the time of the accident. Further, the deceased's sight was not very good, while there had been no evidence that anybody had pushed him.

The jury then returned their verdict and recommendation.

BRITISH REPLY TO EGYPT*READY TO DISCUSS TREATY

Cairo, Jan. 20.
Sir Miles Lampson, High Commissioner, has informed the King, the Premier and the War and Navy Ministers of the British reply to the United Front's recent Note on the subject of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty.

It is understood that the reply expresses Britain's readiness immediately to enter into negotiations for a treaty with Egypt. —Reuter.

SALARY CUTS.*LEVY ON CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYEES

The following is embodied in the official circular which has been drawn up in connection with the decision to make cuts in the salaries of Hongkong Civil Servants.

A temporary levy on both sterling and dollar salaries is to take effect from January 1, 1936. The Secretary of State for the Colonies has approved of the following scheme:

Sterling Salaries

(i) No levy on salaries not exceeding £240 per annum. On salaries above that figure, 2 1/4% on first £240, 5% on next £300, 7 1/4% on next £400, 10% on next £400 and 12 1/2% on remaining portion of salary above £1,400 per annum. This may be expressed in tabular form as under:

On the first £240 ... 2 1/4%
Above £240 and up to £300 ... 5%
Above £300 and up to £1,000 ... 7 1/4%

always provided that this levy shall not operate so as to reduce the salary of any officer below £240 per annum or, for those contributing to Widows' and Orphans' Pension Scheme, £230, 8s. 6d. (i.e. £240 less 4% for Widows' and Orphans' Pension Scheme deduction).

(ii) Rate of conversion for all salaries shall be £=1s/6d. in respect of the period 1st January to 31st March. Widows' and Orphans' Pension Contribution must, in accordance with the Ordinance, be calculated on the full sterling salary and converted at the prevailing monthly Treasury rate. Advances, Home allotments and sterling refunds will similarly be converted at the prevailing Treasury rate. The rate of exchange for conversion of salaries only will be subject to reconsideration at the end of the first quarter.

(iii) The percentages mentioned in General Order 108 (1932 edition) will be calculated on the net dollar salary due to an officer after deduction of the levy.

Dollar Salaries

No levy on salaries not exceeding $240 per annum. On salaries above $240 per annum, 4% on first $1,000, 8% on next $1,000, 12% on next $2,000 and 15% on remaining portion of salary above $5,000 per annum. This may be expressed in tabular form as under:

On the first $1,000 ... 4%
$1,001 to $2,000 ... 8%
$2,001 to $5,000 ... 12%
Above $5,000 ... 15%

always provided that this levy shall not operate so as to reduce the salary of any officer below $240 per annum. From 1st July, these percentages levies will be reduced to 3%, 6%, 10% and 12% respectively.

The levy will be applied to net salaries after deduction of Widows' and Orphans' Pension Contributions.

CHINESE ARTIST*FINE EXHIBITION OPENS AT GLOUCESTER HOTEL

Hongkong art lovers now have an opportunity of testing the many glowing tributes which have been paid to Mr. Teng H. Chiu, A.M.A., the only Chinese painter so honoured by the Royal Society of British Artists.

In his younger days when he was a student at the Museum of Fine Arts in America and later at the Royal Academy in London, Mr. Chiu earned the praise of almost every art critic who had seen his work. He has the distinction of having won every prize for which he has entered in the Royal Academy.

Once he was persuaded by his fellow-students to compete for the Turner Gold Medal in London. He had only three days in which to paint his picture, but in that short space of time he completed a painting which won for him the coveted first prize.

It is this characteristic which marks all his work. He wastes very little time but gets down to it right away. He has been in Hongkong for just over a year and is able to show 15 paintings of local scenes during this visit.

Mr. Chiu went to the power station of the Hongkong Electric Co. at North Point on Sunday morning and before the sun went down he has completed a picture of Hongkong from North Point. Not content with painting one picture, Mr. Chiu went up to the Peak and caught the sun's rays as it sank slowly behind the hills.

He will leave for Europe this week to continue his work. He will first go to England, and expects to travel extensively on the continent, visiting France, Germany, Switzerland and Spain.

Private Exhibition
Mr. Chiu has many friends in Hongkong. He had no intention of giving an exhibition of his work in the Colony, but his friends finally persuaded him to do so. Yesterday's private exhibition was given at the Gloucester Hotel. To-day and to-morrow the exhibition will be open to the public.

The exhibition is particularly interesting for local art lovers in that he has many paintings of Hongkong landscapes on view, all of them done during his present stay. The public will be able to judge for themselves the technique of this Eastern painter who is described as "having succeeded in seeing Occidental art through Oriental eyes."

There are 27 paintings in the exhibition. Of these only about ten are not done in Hongkong.

Mr. Chiu has done Hongkong a great service by setting the Colony's beauty spots on canvas.

A local connoisseur of art was overheard to say at the exhibition: "The Hongkong Travel Association should hold of some of these pictures. They will help to boost the beauties of the Colony."

Many who saw the exhibition yesterday will endorse this view.—M. A.

Eyes And Ears For The Queen Mary

4-MILE BEAM OF LIGHT TO DETECT ICEBERGS

Plans For Maiden Voyage Broadcast

Clydebank, Jan. 1.

A new safety measure for the Cunard-White Star liner the Queen Mary is being experimented within Messrs. John Brown's shipyard here, and if the tests now being carried out are successful, the liner will have a powerful light beam to warn the officers of any obstacles in her path. The beam, which will be connected with the ship's wireless system, will form an arc of light extending for four miles in the direction the Queen Mary is steaming.

CELEBRITIES' BROADCASTS

Any obstacle such as an iceberg or a wreck will break this beam, and an officer in the charthouse will receive a warning flash. The liner's course can then be immediately changed. The most remarkable radio experiment ever attempted on the maiden voyage of a liner will be made in the vessel when she sails from Southampton on May 27.

Listeners in their armchairs in England and in the United States will be able to switch on their sets and follow the events taking place in the wonder ship of the world almost as well as if they were on board.

In the Queen Mary is a miniature Broadcasting House, equipped with transmitting and receiving apparatus unequalled in any ship afloat, and incidents in the liner will be broadcast to stations in England and the United States and relayed. Concerts in the liner will be one of the big features of the programme, and as many celebrities will be passengers, it is probable that a number will be selected to give over the microphone their impressions of the ship and the voyage.

600' Ft. Aerial Span
To deal efficiently with the demands on its regular service the liner will have 32 wavelengths—11 for shortwave use, nine for radio-telephony, seven for long, and five for medium wave. Nine aerial systems will be required to operate these wavelengths, the main aerial having a span of 600ft.

Passengers may speak by radio-telephone to any part of the world, and the installation is equipped with a secret device so that conversations cannot be intercepted or overheard. Thirty-eight loudspeakers are so cunningly concealed in the public rooms that they appear to be part of the schemes of decoration, and three programmes may be relayed at the same time.

The engines of the Queen Mary have now been officially passed by Cunard-White Star experts, and they are ready for the tests to be carried out early in the New Year.

Millionaire And Bride Marooned

Brisbane (Queensland), Jan. 1.
Mr. George Vanderbilt, 21-year-old American multi-millionaire, and his bride have been stranded on an uninhabited island off the Queensland coast for two days and two nights.

The Vanderbilts are on a honeymoon trip that is taking them round the world. At Lady Musgrave Island, in the coral belt off this coast, they left their yacht and went ashore. Then the yacht returned to the mainland for some stores.

A violent storm arose. The yacht could not make the island. And there, for two days and two nights, the young couple were cut off from the civilised world.

Inherited $4,000,000
They made a rude shelter and waited till the weather became calm enough for their friends to rescue them.

Mr. George Vanderbilt, son of the late Mr. Gwynne Vanderbilt, was married to Miss Lucille Parsons early last September at West Orange, New Jersey. Fifteen hundred guests were present at the ceremony.

On the bridegroom's 21st birthday, September 24, he inherited $20,000,000 ($4,000,000). He will get $20,000,000 more when he is 35.

Happy Days Are Back

MILLIONS EXTRA ON ENJOYMENT

OFFICIAL news of happier times: Britain is drinking more champagne and more beer; smoking more tobacco; using more petrol, and spending more on entertainment.

We are even drinking more tea and using more sugar. True, the sale of whisky has gone down, but that has really been due to the wideness of last winter.

This cheerful story of a nation's gaiety, published appropriately on the eve of Christmas, is contained in a Blue Book report by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise for the year 1934-35.

Revenue Hold-Up
The net revenue for the year showed an increase of $3,500,000, the total being $289,000,000. The increase would have been larger still but for the Budget remissions of duty on beer, silks and heavy oil.

Even the unrealised hope of a reduction of duty on spirits in the last Budget robbed the past year's revenue of about $1,000,000, because the trade postponed clearances of liquor in anticipation of the Budget. The Chancellor

One Man Gives Away £1,000,000

LORD NUFFIELD'S LATEST, £125,000

LORD NUFFIELD, ex-bicycle repairer, to-day one of the world's leading motor-car manufacturers, has given £125,000 for—

"The early discovery and efficient orthopaedic treatment of every child threatened with crippledness" throughout the country.

This latest sum—his largest single gift to charity—brings the total of Lord Nuffield's charitable gifts to more than £1,000,000.

For The Children
Lord Nuffield, formerly Mr. William Richard Morris, is fifty-eight years old, married, but has no family.

He has always taken keen interest in the welfare of children and young people.

His gifts include £60,000 for crippled children in New Zealand; £50,000 for crippled children in Australia; £10,000 each for the Borsal Association, Motor and Cycle Trades Children's Homes, St. Peter's Hall, College, Oxford; and many smaller sums for crippled children and adults.

Other Gifts
Other large gifts made by Lord Nuffield in the past ten years are:

Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford	(two portions)	$150,000
Guy's Hospital, London	(two portions)	$115,000
St. Thomas' Hospital, London	(two portions)	$101,000
Birmingham Hospital	(two portions)	$77,000
Wingfield Orthopaedic Hospital	(two portions)	$75,000
League of Industry	(two portions)	$50,000
Worcester Royal Infirmary	(two portions)	$50,000
British Empire Cancer Campaign	(two portions)	$50,000
Country and Warwickshire Hospitals	(two portions)	$25,000
Papworth Village Settlement	(two portions)	$25,000
Mount Vernon Hospital	(two portions)	$25,000

A central fund named after Lord Nuffield is to administer this latest gift of £125,000. It will be spent during the next four or five years in developing the organisation on behalf of cripples where this work cannot at present be undertaken on an adequate scale.

GRIEF SWEEPS BRITAIN WHEN DEATH TAKES RULER

grouched the Royal Family, with the Princess Royal sobbing uncontrollably while the Archbishop of Canterbury knelt in almost inaudible prayer. Thus the head of the Empire's "Great Family" passed within a few hours of the anniversary of the death of his renowned and revered grandmother, Victoria the Good, on January 22, 1901.

Early bulletins had prepared the nation for the worst and when the ominous 9.35 p.m. message became public, broadcasting programmes were altered, theatres and sports, and all places of amusement and the Stock Exchange were closed to-day.—British Wireless.

HAD NO HOPE

London, Jan. 21. Although the King's entourage maintained an optimistic attitude inwardly they had recognized that there was no hope for the recovery of the monarch, says Reuter's special correspondent at Sandringham.

Apart from the fact that the King had been seriously weakened by his 1928 illness, after which he had been abandoned by weakness in consequence of a horse rolling on him during the Great War.

In October, when the King went shooting for the last time, it was noticed with dismay that his neck was badly swollen.

Three weeks ago, His Majesty faintly whilst attending Sandringham Parish Church.

Ten days ago, the King insisted on making a visit to the Newmarket stud farm to see a newly-purchased stallion. He then had to be carried into the interior, and had to be carried out ten minutes later. His face was purple, and it is believed that he suffered a stroke. His first stroke occurred in August, also at Sandringham.—Reuter.

KING GEORGE PASSES

London, Jan. 21. His Majesty the King passed peacefully at 11.56 p.m. last night. At his bedside were the majority of his family, including Her Majesty the Queen, who had remained with him throughout his five days' illness, the Prince of Wales, who will succeed him, the Duke of York, the Princess Royal and the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, announcing His Majesty's death, said:

"He whom we loved as King has passed from our midst.

"We voice the deep grief of all the peoples of the Empire and profess our profound sympathy for the Queen and the Royal Family.

"Ourselves and fellow-citizens at home and overseas reaffirm our loyalty to the Crown."—Reuter.

DIED WITHOUT PAIN

London, Jan. 21. His Majesty the King died peacefully, according to a bulletin from Sandringham.

It adds: "Death came peacefully at 11.56 p.m. in the presence of Her Majesty, the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Princess Royal, the Duke and Duchess of Kent."

This last bulletin was signed by the three physicians who had been with the King since he was first stricken Thursday, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Sir F. Williams.

QUEEN'S GRIEF

The members of the Royal Family stood about the bedside as His Majesty died. The Queen wept softly, and held her husband's hand.

The tragic silence was only broken by the King's laboured breathing.

Her Majesty broke down as the King died, but she quickly rallied and kissed his brow.

Lord Dawson of Penn solemnly announced the King's death, addressing the Prince of Wales. He said: "Your Majesty, your father is dead."—United Press.

NEWS FROM DAVENTRY

The first announcement of the King's passing was received in Hong Kong from Daventry. It stated: "It is with great sorrow that we have the following announcement to make: 'His Majesty the King died peacefully at 11.56 p.m. to-night in the presence of Her Majesty the Queen, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Princess Royal, and the Duke and Duchess of Kent.'

"He whom we loved as King has passed from our midst. We voice the grief of all people of our Empire and our profound sympathy with Her Majesty the Queen and the Royal Family."

"With our fellow-citizens at Home and Overseas we affirm our loyalty to the Crown."

The announcement was made at frequent intervals by the radio, and broadcast transmission being devoted to relay of the Westminster Cathedral bells.

Daventry also announced that the Prime Minister Mr. Stanley Baldwin would broadcast a message to the Empire at 9.20 p.m. G.M.T. (9.20 a.m. tomorrow) (Hongkong Time).

Mr. Baldwin said: "The death of His Majesty King George V. has been a great sorrow to all of us. I have had the misfortune to see before me. Not only do you lie to save your own skin,

Witness absolutely denied that he had ever asked defendant for $50 or $20 in connection with the warrant. Defendant denied that he had given a distress warrant in respect of No. 67 and 59 Nathan Road which was executed on January 4. Actually the warrant gave five days in which to pay, but eight days would have been given.

On January 14 the warrant was extended and then withdrawn. That was done through solicitors and the landlord.

Witness knew defendant as being the son of a money-lender, and he had taken summonses to witness at various times to be registered. Witness had not seen defendant for three or four weeks.

FALSE PRETENCES YOUNG INDIAN CONVICTED ON TWO COUNTS

Remarking that defendant's conduct in the case had been "applicable" and that he was so angry that he could not say more, the judge then, Mr. E. F. Wynne-Jones, remanded Gajjan Singh, 22, unemployed, until this morning, after having convicted him on two charges of obtaining money and a bottle of whisky by false pretences on January 9 and 10. The case was heard at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

It was alleged that on January 9 defendant obtained a bottle of "House of Lords" whisky from the complainants, Dr. L. A. San Jose and Mrs. Hester Wong, who were partners of the International Boarding House, No. 67 and 59, Nathan Road, by pretending that it was to be given as a present to the first bailiff of the Supreme Court, with whom the defendant would use his influence in connection with a distress warrant issued against the Boarding House.

It was alleged in a second charge that, by means of the same pretence, defendant obtained the sum of $20 from the complainants on January 10.

Detective-Sub-Inspector L. Whant appeared for the prosecution and stated that on January 3 a distress warrant was issued against the complainants by their landlord for non-payment of rent. On January 9 the two went to moneylenders at No. 10 Queen's Road, and there they saw defendant but did not converse with him.

After having finished their business the complainants went to a car on Dea Voeux Road and there they again saw defendant. He was asked to join them and he was told about the distress warrant, and he told them that he might be able to assist them.

Promised a Loan

Defendant later went with Mrs. Wong to see the landlord and asked him to extend execution of the warrant, but he refused. Defendant then went with Mrs. Wong to the International Boarding House and made the two complainants believe that he was a wealthy man and produced an I.O.U. for $900 which was signed by a Russian. He asked the complainants whether they knew this man and where he lived, and promised them a loan of $500 if they would take him to where he lived.

Mrs. Wong stated that she knew where the man lived and took the defendant to Lai-chikok Road to find him, but failed to do so. She left defendant about 5 p.m. and at 7 p.m. the same night defendant went back to the boarding house and told Mrs. Wong that it would be necessary to give a bottle of whisky to the first bailiff at the Supreme Court in order to get him to extend the warrant.

A bottle of whisky was bought, but defendant said that that brand was not the kind that the bailiff liked and wrote out a brand of whisky on a chit, and a bottle of House of Lords whisky was purchased. This was handed to defendant in the presence of both complainants.

On the same night at 1 a.m. (January 10) defendant returned to the boardinghouse and saw Mrs. Wong, and he asked to see Dr. Jose, so he was taken to the doctor's room and there he asked for $50. Eventually he was given $20 to give to the first bailiff as a present for favours received from him. The money consisted of one $10 note, a $5 note, and five $1 notes.

Did Not Turn Up

On receiving the money defendant told Mrs. Wong to accompany him and see him hand the money to the bailiff, but when they got outside defendant merely jumped on a bus and told Mrs. Wong to meet him at the Supreme Court at 8 a.m. As arranged, complainant went to meet defendant but she waited until 11 a.m. and he did not turn up.

Complainant then went and made enquiries herself, and found that the first bailiff could not grant an extension for the stay of the execution of the distress warrant, so she went out and at No. 10 Queen's Road she saw defendant and asked him why he was fooling her. Defendant told complainant not to make so much noise and asked her to go home and he would go and see her. The woman went home but did not see the man again.

Dr. Jose consulted his solicitors about the matter and he was advised that if he saw defendant he was to arrest him and take him to the nearest police station. On Sunday morning (January 12) Dr. Jose went to No. 8 Morrison Hill Road, which was a garage, where defendant lived and took him to the No. 2 Police Station where the new warrant was given to Fitches. Later defendant was sent to T. McIntosh.

Corroborative evidence was given by the complainants and Detective-Sergeant D. Fitches.

Mr. H. J. Millington, bailiff of the Supreme Court, deposed that he had a distress warrant in respect of No. 67 and 59 Nathan Road which was executed on January 4. Actually the warrant gave five days in which to pay, but eight days would have been given.

On January 14 the warrant was extended and then withdrawn. That was done through solicitors and the landlord.

TUESDAY, JAN. 21, 1936.

A BELOVED MONARCH

Not only throughout the Empire over whose destinies he so long and ably ruled, but the wide world over, will the passing of His Majesty King George the Fifth be deeply mourned. His death overshadows all other news today, and here in Hongkong no less than in other parts of the Empire very real sympathy will be felt for the bereaved Queen and the other members of the Royal Family in the heavy loss which they have been called upon to bear. Beloved by his people, whose deep affection for their monarch was so strikingly evidenced during the celebration of his Silver Jubilee, the late King will go down in history as George the Wise. The reign now ended was marked by many troublous times—none more tragic and disastrous than the Great War—but King George the Fifth, by his calmness, his urbanity, his level-headedness, and his high integrity of purpose, in dark days and peaceful times alike, won a measure of love and popularity that few British monarchs ever enjoyed. Not robust physically, the late King really never completely recovered from his serious illness in 1928, which left him extremely susceptible to chest trouble, of which he had had recurring attacks on several occasions since. That illness of six years ago brought both King and people to a full realisation of the affection that existed between them. Throughout the following trouble-fraught years of worldwide depression—when the King more than once forsook the role of a mere figure-head and exercised his influence in political and economic crises that menaced the Empire's welfare—the sovereign's personal popularity became further enhanced. Of his contribution to his day and time, history will give us a truer perspective than is possible now. But it can be said that as a ruler he marched steadily with public opinion and the advancement of democratic principles. If he had a good insight into his prerogative, he regarded it as his duty, as a constitutional monarch, loyally to

THE SQUIRE of SANDRINGHAM

By F. G. Prince-White

It was at Sandringham, where the peaceful sound of bells ring over Norfolk's woods and fields, and the sound of them is as the very voice of that corner of England which has never lost its ancient quietude, that the King died. He dearly loved this corner of England.

It was at Sandringham that the late King was seen as "The First country gentleman in Europe," as he was called in a singularly well-written and illuminating publication by J. Wontworth Day, published last month, "King George V as a Sportsman."

NOTES OF THE DAY

PRAYERS OF AN EMPIRE

The spontaneous demonstration of affection by the three little girls outside the gates of Buckingham Palace who, while they waited in the cold for news of His Majesty's progress at Sandringham, sang in their sweet, child voices "God save the King," is to our mind one of the most touching incidents of these anxious days of the sovereign's illness. Possibly it typifies the feeling of the masses of the British people, that little demonstration of love. It is the sort of thing which has sanctified the bond between the ruler and his people—"my friends, my people," as he liked to call them. Such incidents are rare because, in their nature, British people are notably undemonstrative. They hide their emotions. The older they are, the more jealously they guard their more intimate feelings and their more sacred thoughts. However, if His Majesty and His Majesty's family, in this hour of stress, had need of a whisper from the heart of the people of the sympathy and loyalty and tender regard felt for the Sovereign, they would take comfort from the prayer sung in the chilly street before the gates of Sandringham by these three little girls.

accept the advice of his Ministers. Thus he never interfered directly in party politics, but in times of emergency his influence was always quietly exercised. He followed principles which have enabled his subjects almost to become republicans without knowing it. Were it not for this policy, that remarkable experiment, the organic union of free nations into the British Commonwealth, would never have been possible and surely could not continue. Never more so than during the late King's reign had the social instinct of his people so profoundly needed the stabilising influence of the Crown; never had a monarch risen with more excellent discretion and the exercise of real wisdom to the greatness of his occasion. To-day, King George is no more; he has been gathered to his forefathers in the fullness of his years. But he bequeaths to his successor on the Throne and to his people a rich heritage, the preservation of which will never be in doubt.

In its pages we see the late King as the personification of a nation of sportsmen, graciously at home with the staunch-souled, simple-hearted Norfolk folk, savouring full contentment with old friends, his gun and his dogs. Very beautifully the author conveys the spirit of the late King's home "on this north-east shoulder of Norfolk, which butts into the North Sea bluntly," where "we meet the first of the Arctic winds, the force and the thunder of seas that roll without a break between here and Iceland." He likes to "think that it is because Norfolk is still Norfolk it is still Old England, stoutly jealous of itself, content to take time as time comes, determined to build to last."

Of the country in which Sandringham stands imbued with grace and dignity, he says:

There is something in its peace and space, a spirit about its little lost villages and crawling creeks, a windiness on its heaths and a stateliness about its little old churches—about its little old something about its little old perspective. These old acres see Time with the wise eyes of age. A thousand years ago Sandringham saw the Vikings beach their ships. It saw the ravens fly at the manhood, the fighting in the surges, the reddening of the waves, that ghostly fighting in the fog, those battles on the blasted heath which Trevelyan put into immortal English. It saw thorp and hamlet go up in smoke and flame. And it was the forging of a new England.

He paints a sharp picture of "this wild and lonely coast, this place which seems still to breed a bleak independence," and points to the sturdiness of the cottages of Sandringham, Snettisham, Wells, Blakeney, Cley, and Morston—fine names, breathing romance. And he speaks of "the great barns and the farm walls, the maltings and the warehouses that stand sturdily down to the creek's edge."

"So," he says truly, "one can imagine no more fitting county for the private home of the King of England. The country has character. Its face has not been spoiled. Its coastline is still wild. Its winds are keen. There is much in it of beauty and little of softness."

Nowhere was the King happier than at Sandringham, "that pleasant but not too large house, set in the heart of its great estate, ringed by its little homely villages, pheasants crowing on its lawns, its ploughlands gull-dappled. . . .

Pigeons gossip loudly in the branches of trees, and "somewhere in the background there is the hum of lawn-mowers, the barking of spaniels, the stamp and jingle of horses, a grumble of pleasant Norfolk voices. . . . It is in this setting of unmarred tranquillity that the King was most at rest. When he emerged from it, to go where the partridges call, he was the King of sportsmen."

The county that bred Nelson produced also Coke of Holkham and "Turnip" Townshend, the twin fathers of English farming. It bred, too, Tom de Grey, fifth Lord Walsingham, one of the greatest shots that ever lived. It saw the arts of pheasant shooting and partridge driving brought to perfection. Its marshes and broads have known wild-fowl in their thousands since the dawn of time.

Sandringham is, "in some measure, the quintessence of Norfolk, a mirror in little of the sport and beauty that have made the character of Englishmen. . . . There are fifteen thousand acres of farms and coverts, of marshes and saltings, of grand heaths where the rabbits bob about in hundreds and the first sigh in the sea wind. There are little green valleys, with a little river full of trout. There are great woods that stand like noble sentinels against the sky. There are brecks golden with gorse, marmarous with bees in summer, rusty red in winter."

In one of the late King's game-books it is recorded that, as Prince of Wales, he shot the marshes with the Kaiser.

That was on a November day in 1902. For many years King

George V delighted in wildfowling. Here is a vivid glimpse of him out where "the curley rise in clouds and go shrieking up the lonely coast":

"Overhead, against the confused colours of a winter sunset, the wild geese flight in from the sand-bars to the fresh marshes of Holkham. . . . And under the sea-wall winding like a grey snake into the cattle marshes, goes the creek of Wolferton, its waters steel-grey, crisp, before the nor-easter."

"Over the wall, with a sudden whicker of wings, come the duck—six—eight—ten dark forms, whistling in like bullets. They are here in a flash. And, as suddenly, they fling upwards like rockets at the sight of the still, solitary figure in the reeds."

"A double flash, twin staccato reports which are whipped away by the wind, the quick, acrid smell of burnt powder—and a pair are down in the fleet in sudden uplifting fountains of spray."

"More fowl come, and from each trip or bunch the lonely gunner takes toll."

"Soon the short flight is over. The peewits wait in the gloom. A thin, cold moon comes up over the sea. On the upland an owl hoots in the old woods. A horon cries hoarsely, the red-shank pipe. Night and the sea-wind possess the marsh."

"Homeward by the path which countless sheep and bullocks have worn across the marsh goes the fowler—George the Fifth of England, for one brief and precious hour the plain Squire of Sandringham."

If at Sandringham the King was the sportsman-squire, at Balmoral he was the friendly laird. The folk there always deeply admired not only his great prowess on the grouse moors but his vast knowledge of the birds.

In 1911, in the course of his Coronation Durbar tour of India, the late King greatly impressed everybody with his skill and coolness in big-game shooting.

Of his genius as a sportsman all men know. He revived yachting when, after the war, it seemed to be dead. Many a time it was due to his sailor's qualities that Britannia sailed to victory.

And year after year his presence at those two great national events, Epsom and Ascot, gave joy to his subjects who like nothing better than a royal win.

Well may this study of the late King in the realm of sport end on a note of deep thankfulness that, from 1910 to 1936, the most turbulent quarter of a century of its history, the Empire "was led by a very human, lovable man, an English gentleman, and a sportsman of the old school whose faith and principles neither time nor wars could shake."

CHAPTER XXXV

Bob rose. "Time for me to be getting on," he said. "I'm a fellow who always has been and I've always known it!"

"Would that tell Colin anything, Bob?" he asked. "He didn't want him making Elinor unhappy."

"Why, you're one of the best friends I've ever had!" Elinor protested warmly.

For a moment Barrett wondered. Her voice seemed sincere. Then he remembered Elinor's art. The child was a clever actress as her mother. That was all.

He rose, bowing stiffly, as Bob Telford said his farewells.

"See you again, perhaps," said Bob. "If you're going to be down here for a time."

"Perhaps," said Barrett.

Driving his low, open car toward the inn where he was putting up, Bob decided that he'd better be off and give Elinor her full chance. Surely a man who was with her each day should know her! He couldn't be sure that Colin was such a fool.

It was rather awkward, too, to try to show another man his wife's good qualities. Bob didn't see how he could do that. Lord, wouldn't Colin freeze him if he should try such a thing? He could almost feel the congealing air. Nevertheless Bob decided he would tell Colin all he knew of Elinor if Colin were hurting her by misunderstanding their friendship. He'd knock Colin down, sit on his chest and tell him, if he had to, he'd give them a month, then nose around a bit and find out how things stood.

Maybe Bessie Thorpe could help him out if help were needed. Bessie was a peach and she did the most adroit tinkering with human maladjustment while cleverer souls who would have batched the job spoke of her with affectionate amusement as "dear, good, hugging Bessie."

After dinner and some telephoning to arrange north-bound reservations Bob did the worst thing he could have done. He left for New York. His own honesty made him see this as the best thing for all concerned. He did not for a moment imagine that Barrett would convert his departure into a confession of guilt.

Bob paid his hotel bill, left instructions for shipping his car and was driven to the station to board a hot, airless sleeping car. He lay awake most of the night, arguing out the situation with himself.

He could not forget the menace of Colin's attitude because it menaced Elinor. She was a peach and she had had a rotten hard break. She had all ways been surrounded by the sort of life she loathed. Damn it, if he had to he would have it out with Colin. He'd say, "Look here, you give Elinor a square deal or—" He planned on in the naive, blunt manner of a young man who knows more of blue ribbon mares, long distance swimming and golf trophies than of diplomacy.

Miss Hemmingsway, the nurse, came to the terrace after Bob had gone. Miss Hemmingsway was a compound of starchy starched, rustling linen, smooth hair, port, small cap and ready smile that told nothing with scientific reserve. Her smile the last few days had been as artificial as the stiffness of her manner. She had been nursing for 12 years, but she still felt the oppression that comes from losing a patient. She always felt it more when she had had the patient for a long while and she'd been on this case several months.

She had pitied Benitwell Stafford, at first, knowing him through Lida. Now, pity being akin to love, she really cared for him as a poor, broken human being who had led a horrible life with "that woman," and to make the fight to get well. Elinor she worshipped. And Elinor, she knew, was going to take what lay ahead with the keenest suffering.

On the terrace she shook hands with Mr. Colvin after expressing mild surprise at seeing him. He was a wonderful looking man, she thought. It was seldom one saw two such fine looking people together.

Miss Hemmingsway stood with cool, gentle fingers on Benitwell's thin wrist, eyes on her watch. Then she said, "Well, I think we'll put you to bed for your dinner. You've had a full day with all these visitors."

Benitwell nodded. He knew he wasn't equal to much more effort. Elinor murmured her disappointment and Barrett seconded it, half-ashamed. He could not be sorry that he was to dine alone with Elinor.

At eight they sat down at a cozy little table in a small, attractive dining room. Tall candles with flames dancing gently in the moving air and a low bowl of flowers made a frame for Elinor's face. She wore a primrose frock of soft chiffon and her hair was dressed low as he liked it. She smiled at him and sighed. She was so happy! Tremulously, unbelievably happy!

"It was no good of you to come!" she said.

"It's good to be here," he answered honestly. As always he was weakening under her spell. Nothing mattered now to him but the knowledge that she was near.

He gave her the message Higgins had sent—that the servants had missed her—and spoke of his interviews with Lida. That silenced her for several seconds.

Elinor asked about his work and he told her what he had been doing. He was surprised to find that she knew a good deal about it.

"I didn't know you were interested in that sort of thing," he said slowly.

"But it's your work—" she said, and laughed. "Since coming down here I've read everything you've written that I could lay my hands on. I think you write beautifully!"

"Well—my dear child—I can't write at all!"

"But you can!" she disputed firmly. "I think you'd like expedition work," he said. He had never before considered taking her on a trip with him. If he could do that what a trip it would be!

"I've often dreamed about something of that sort," she said. "I know one kind of life—and it's such a narrow kind. When I was little my happiest day dream was imagining I had been shipwrecked on a desert island where there were no bills and no debts—just honesty and congenial savages!"

"There ain't no such animals!" he said, laughing.

"I'd be glad to trade poisoned arrows for poisoned talk," she assured him. "I know I'd like them better!"

They had their coffee in the living room, a charmingly simple place of gay chintzes, softened in tone by the low lights. French doors opened to the terrace and the soft night breeze crept in to stir the hangings, making roses and lilacs nod in their vases. Elinor sat on a low stool and Barrett in a deep chair, leaning forward toward her.

"I want to have a long talk with you," he said after the maid had left a coffee tray on the low table near Elinor.

"I want to talk to you, too," she confessed. She was going to tell him she could not endure much more of his "blowing hot and then cold." It must be one thing or the other continually, in order to make the rest of the time, they were to spend together endurable.

He could soften her so utterly by being as he was now. Then when he grew cold again she suffered doubly. She would tell him that frankly, she had decided, admitting that she was happier when they were friends than she had ever been before.

To Avoid Influenza.

A medical writer, speaking of the after effects of influenza, says—"It is astonishing the number of people who have been crippled in health for years after an attack." Now that influenza is again prevalent, therefore, it is a wise precaution to build up the system, so that it may be ready to protect itself against invasion by this dread disease.

Your best safeguard against influenza is not to allow yourself to become run down. Health and strength are dependent upon a plentiful supply of rich, red blood. Your best ally in sustaining the system in robust health is a tonic capable of creating such blood, and of such tonic there is none better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The prescription of a British physician, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been proved by clinical tests rapidly to increase the number of red blood corpuscles, which, in turn, carry haemoglobin, that substance which conveys oxygen from the lungs and nutrient from the food digested, to all the cells and tissues of the body, thereby building up and revitalizing the whole system.

Build up your health therefore with Dr. Williams' famous tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills; they will surely do you good. Obtainable from chemist everywhere.

Of old, the "town-crier" made things known.

To do this he rang his bell at certain points where he could be sure of the biggest crowds. The difference between then and to-day is that circulation was indicated by the number of listeners; the advertiser of 1936 can only gauge the field his message covers by the number of newspaper readers.

Hence the reason for Chartered Accountants' Certificates of Newspaper Sales.

However much advertising may be discussed, the indisputable fact remains that newspapers must be the first charge on the advertising schedule.

The South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph give the widest possible certified coverage.

ENGLAND LUCKY

TO DRAW SECOND TEST MATCH

LANGRIDGE THE SAVIOUR

Wellington, Jan. 20. The second unofficial cricket test match between New Zealand and England was drawn.

In the first innings New Zealand made 242 runs to which England replied with a total of 166, and at the close of play on Saturday New Zealand had made 11 without loss.

To-day the home side took the total to 229 for three wickets when the declaration was applied. Of the total J. L. Kerr made 105 without losing his wicket. He played carefully, but bright cricket and took three hours in which to score his runs, and drove principally by leg glances and drives. He had twelve fours in his innings.

In partnership with H. G. Vivian he put on 190 runs for the third wicket, scored in 135 minutes. Vivian had 96 to his credit when dismissed. He made the majority of his runs from drives through cover. He hit ten fours.

At the close of play the England side made 130 runs for seven wickets. James Langridge, the Sussex all rounder, who scored 61 not out, robbed the New Zealanders of a glorious victory. He was at the wickets for 103 minutes and hit eight fours. He displayed sterling defence. Roberts took three of the wickets for 83 runs.—Reuter.

Four cases of Diphtheria (one imported) and three cases of Typhoid were reported to the Health authorities during the week-end.

AUSTRALIANS WIN BY AN INNINGS

Wickets in Plenty For Grimmett & O'Reilly

Bloomfontein, Jan. 20. The Australians beat the Orange Free State by an innings and 146 runs here to-day.

Grimmett and O'Reilly bowled the Free Staters out in both innings, the first time for 88 and the second for 127.

In the first innings Grimmett took 5 for 35 and O'Reilly 4 for 38, while later Grimmett captured 5 for 67 and O'Reilly 5 for 34. All told Grimmett took 10 for 142 and O'Reilly nine for 72.

The Australians scored rapidly in their one and only knock, compiling 361 for the loss of four wickets before declaring.

O'Brien helped himself to 109 and Stanley McCabe hit 112.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Jan. 20. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz Wall Street Journal comments:—"The market was irregular and unsettled during the day, due to the improved financial outlook. Cinema box-office receipts continue their high level. Short interest has increased substantially. Referring to the market outlook, the Journal says: "All attention for a speculative movement is out-running the business demand. The Journal points out that the coming election is of growing importance to the market and hence this may need some discounting."

Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow Jones Summary of yesterday's markets:—"The market to-day was irregular, but rallied near the close, inspired by the announcement that the directors of the Greyhound Corporation have approved a four to one stock split. Utility issues, particularly when the Supreme Court judges met, but prices closed about unchanged when it was learned that the Court's decision regarding the TVA was not rendered. Steel issues rallied slightly on an announcement by the Iron and Steel Institute of a slight increase in operations. Numerous special issues registered gains, while oils were quiet, but firm. Both Curb stocks and bonds were irregularly lower."

S. C. & P. New York office cables: Stocks: The market was irregular, with a firm undertone. The Supreme Court's ruling on the TVA has been delayed until February 3rd, at the earliest. Warner Brothers have earned 25 cents per share for the 13 weeks ended November 30th, against a loss of $14.75 during the corresponding period of last year. The TIMES business index is 96.7 for the week ended January 11th, against the revised figure of 96.6 the previous week and 80.1 during the corresponding week of last year. The United Aircraft Corporation proposes sale of additional common shares for working capital purposes.

Cotton: It is reported that the Supreme Court has ordered the Administration to refund the Proceeding Taxes. There is some talk about opening the Cotton Pool to the market. "Spots" are strong. The market is awaiting Washington developments.

Wheat: Continued steadiness of May wheat is probable. The large acreage and favourable conditions of the new-crop are restraining factors. The visible supply in Canada has decreased by 2,482,000 bushels and in the United States the visible supply has decreased by 1,371,000 bushels. Corn: The visible supply shows an increase of 198,000 bushels.

Rubber: There is a resumption of factory buying, but speculative interests are inclined to await the French Cabinet situation.

ALL ABOUT SHANGHAI HOCKEY PLAYERS

U. Berg (Germans): Left Wing. Played for the Germans since the team entered the league a few years ago. Is very fast, tricky and centres powerfully. Deserves her position from the splendid exhibition she gave in the trials.

E. McCracken and M. McCracken, Sisters (S.A.S.): Left-inside and right-inside respectively. Both still attending the American School. The fastest and best forwards in their side. Rarely miss opportunities when near the "D". Possess fine passing movements.

J. Bloomfield (S. Girls): Centre-forward, Captain of her team last year when it won the Jones Shield. A capable leader; distributes the ball well to her inside forwards and has the knack of keeping the players together. Is dangerous inside the circle. Did not go to Hongkong last February on account of work.

E. Little (S. Girls): Right Wing. Formerly of the American School where she learnt her hockey. Member of the Sports Girl last season when it won the Jones Shield. Is a capable right wing, very aggressive and pushing. Understands her position well, is very elusive and dangerous when within the 25 line as she sends accurate and powerful centres to her inside players. Has earned her position by fine showing during the trials.

FANLING GOLF

W. W. C. Sheehan (15) finished two up on bogey and won the Bogey (Par) Pool on the Old Course at Fanling during the week-end.

There were 32 entries, and the best scores apart from Sheehan's were: D. J. Mackie (8) all square, and A. C. I. Bowler (10), D. C. Kieffe (18) and K. K. Rounds (15), all three of whom finished one down.

LINER LUXURY FOR 80 PASSENGERS

THE largest aircraft ever built waits in a long, high building at Friedrichshafen, on the shores of Lake Constance, Germany, for its first journey across the world.

It is still known as the Zeppelin LZ129.

The Sunday Express is able to reveal that it will be called Adolf Hitler.

It will be ready for its first flights in a few days.

Half a million cubic feet of gas is being pumped into it—the last process in its two years of construction.

This great hangar has seen its birth from a design on a drawing-board to the mighty skeleton, dwarfing the workmen who swarmed among the maze of girders.

For the past few weeks men and women have been busy stitching the great silver envelope.

Smoking Allowed

The 839-foot-long "ship of the air" will carry eighty passengers and a large crew. It will be driven by four mighty oil-burning engines at more than eighty miles an hour.

Passenger will not be accommodated in cramped compartments. Long promenade decks, glass-enclosed, will give them views of the lands and seas thousands of feet below.

They will eat in extensive dining saloons, served by stewards, with food prepared by first-class chefs.

There will be smart cocktail bars and dancing floors. Passengers will be able to smoke—the helium gas is non-inflammable.

They will sleep in luxuriously appointed staterooms.

Only a faint humming sound will tell them the great sky-ship is being driven by powerful, roaring engines, each housed in a gondola outside the hull.

Booked Up

Even if they fly at heights where the fleet and snow are born, through the driving clouds of ice crystals, four miles above the earth, the travellers will be warm, kept at an even temperature by central heating and air conditioning.

If the maiden voyage is to New York, passengers will do the journey in less than three days. If it is to Brazil, across the South Atlantic, they will halve the time taken by the fastest ship.

Every cabin is booked for the maiden voyage.

Hugo Eckener, veteran of the airship lines, will command her. Among his officers will be men who bombed London from the Zeppelins in 1916.

CURIOUS EXPORT TRAFFIC

Christchurch, N. Z.

A strange traffic has grown up between New Zealand and Germany in the eye-teeth of deer.

Several months ago an inquiry was received and a consignment of several hundred teeth was forwarded to a German firm at the price of 1/6d a pair. A further 200 pairs has just been despatched.

The keenest demand is for discoloured teeth, probably because that is a proof that the teeth are from adult deer. It is believed that they may be used in the making of some kind of ceremonial insignia.

As deer are being widely culled owing to their depredations on farm produce, the demand can easily be supplied.

Jilted Girl Marries Man She Sued

ON March 23 Miss Eva M. Horton of Mansfield, Notts, and Mr. Leslie Francis Kitching, of Colindale, N.W., stood before the pastor in West Hendon Baptist Church.

Their marriage had then twice been postponed.

"Will you have this woman to thy lawful wedded wife?" he asked.

"I cannot say that," replied the bridegroom.

The bride's mother collapsed, and the wedding was stopped.

"I cannot go on," Kitching told the pastor in the vestry.

The wedding was abandoned, and Miss Horton returned to Mansfield with her wedding cake and flowers.

On May 28, Miss Horton was awarded £100 damages against Kitching at Nottingham.

This month the couple again stood before a minister, in Mansfield Parish Church.

This time the bridegroom said "I will."

THEY DRESS FOR DINNER IN RUSSIA NOW

Girls Who Are Seeing Evening Dresses For The First Time

The women of Russia are taking an interest in clothes again. Mme. Schiaparelli, the dress designer, who has just returned to London from Moscow, said "I was besieged with questions about how the women in the great outer world are dressing."

Mme. Schiaparelli designed a dress for the Russian working woman—"black wool, with a washable collar, very simple"—and a red coat of heavier wool. It can be worn at business and at home, by day or in the evening.

"Dressing for dinner is just beginning over there," she says. "But it is spreading rapidly. Many of the younger women have never seen evening dresses before."

"The women are generally healthy, good looking, and intelligent. Their babies, which are the healthiest I have ever seen, are looked after in creches all day and reclaimed in the evenings when their mothers come home from work."

where the cold fights you . . .

Colds usually attack in the nose, throat and chest. That is where you should fight them. You can—by simply rubbing Vicks VapoRub on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Penetrates—To Ease Congestion. Instantly, there is a warm, comfortable tingle in your chest as the ointment begins to "draw out" the tightness and pain and break up the congestion.

Vaporises—To Clear Air-Passages. At the same time, its healing vapours soothe the inflamed passages direct to the air-passages. They clear the clogging mucus—let you breathe easily, again.

All night long, while you sleep in comfort, this powerful two-way action keeps on work.

ing. By morning, almost always, the worst of the cold is over.

Mothers especially appreciate this safe, external treatment for children's cold-troubles.

For Better Control of Colds. Vicks VapoRub has an ideal companion product that helps to prevent colds. It is called Vicks Va-tro-nol. You simply put a few drops up each nostril as the first sniffle or sneeze. These two products are the basis of the remarkable Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. The Plan provides the proper medication for every type and stage of a cold. It means fewer colds, less severe colds, far less danger and expense from colds. Full details in the packages.

More Babies Campaign In Italy

Rome, Dec. 22.

While reiterating that there is no elbow room for Italy's 42,000,000 inhabitants within her present confines, the Italian Government resolutely pursues its campaign for the encouragement of big families. The nation is invited to count among its most practical patriots such wives as can give birth to a series of children as rapidly as nature can allow and as long as the mother's physique can bear the strain.

Competition in this race for the prolific is organised locally in each of the 95 provinces of Italy, and yesterday Signor Mussolini received the 95 prize-winners. The money rewards are given to those who married after December 10, 1925, have the largest number of living children to date.

The 95 women honoured by the Duce had given birth to 616 babies in less than ten years of married life.

At the end of the ceremony at the Palazzo Venezia, the mothers banded over their wedding rings for the common cause.

Tay Bridge Tragedy

MAN WHO FORECAST A GREAT DISASTER

Dundee, Dec. 22.

In this town is an aged man who has tried in vain for fifty-six years to banish from his mind the memory of a tragedy.

In 1879 Mr. Alexander Kennedy, of Nethergate, Dundee, was a foreman cleaner, and sometimes acted as fireman on trains crossing the famous Tay Bridge.

Three days after Christmas Day in that year the bridge collapsed. More than eighty people lost their lives when a train plunged through it into the river.

"I told my father and friends a fortnight before that the bridge would collapse," he said to me, "but they laughed at me."

"I was acting as fireman on a pilot engine between Leuchars and Dundee. A gale was blowing, and I was certain that the bridge shook as we passed over it."

On the night before the disaster an engine-driver called at the home of Mr. Kennedy. He scoffed at the young fireman's warning.

Next night he was drowned in the Tay when his engine fell through the bridge.

"On the Sunday night that the tragedy took place a storm rose," Mr. Kennedy went on.

"There was a seventy-miles-an-hour gale, and slates and chimney pots were blown from houses.

"I was working as engine-cleaner that night when a pointsman rushed to tell us that communication between both ends of the bridge was broken."

"I began getting a pilot engine ready to cross the bridge to make investigations, but two men, who crawled on their hands and knees over part of the bridge found that the centre girders had collapsed."

"If the discovery had not been made I would have driven my pilot engine into the Tay."

"The lights of a train seen on the bridge had suddenly disappeared."

"That was all. The passengers were trapped, and although it is known that at least eighty-three lives were lost, the exact number has never been discovered."

Early the next morning a man stood among the crowd. He looked at the shattered bridge, and tears came into his eyes.

He was Sir Thomas Bouch, the designer.

CRAIGENGOWER BATTING ORDER EXPERIMENT

FAILS AGAINST THE I.R.C.

PEREIRA SKITTLES OUT OPENING BATSMEN GOOD TWIN PERFORMANCE WITH MINU

(By R. Abbit)

It is extremely difficult to be in two places at once but I got as near as I could to it on Saturday last when I saw the Army batting and then moved to Sookunpoo and saw the Indians put Craigengower out for no more than fifty three runs.

The result of this latter game was very important as it puts the I.R.C. a clear four points above the Club with the same number (four) of games played, and apart from a surprise defeat they should have a very good chance of the Shield, even if they do lose to the Club. And I confess that though possible, it seems to be almost as unlikely as that the Club will succumb to them!

A FINE INNINGS

A. S. Sumat again played a nice brisk innings of sixty, and on his excellent form with the bat this year he will undoubtedly merit a trial for the next Interport, unless he goes off a lot. S. A. Imall and A. H. Madar also put up useful contributions, but once it became apparent that the I.R.C. were not going to collapse, the C.C.C. went out to cramp the rate of scoring and they did pretty successfully, for I gather the innings of 69 for 7 wickets took 110 minutes to complete—which is not very fast scoring on the small Sookunpoo ground. The position was that the C.C.C. had to get 100 runs in an hour and forty-five minutes about a run and a half per minute which was by no means an impossible task as a theoretical proposition. But in view of the strength of the I.R.C. first pair of bowlers, it was not a very likely one. In his first five overs Pereira put an end to any chance of a Craigengower victory. F. K. Lee was not playing and for some reason A. T. Lee opened the innings with Youngs. They went in, I think, numbers seven and ten against the Club a fortnight before. The experiment was disastrous, for Pereira, bowling from the Tung Wa end, (unusually and the first ball) bowled Youngs with the first ball of the innings, and A. T. Lee in his second over (5-2-0) bowled Hammon with the score at nineteen.

A STAND

Then Ernie Zimmerman, who had had a bit of luck collecting a five from an overthrow off Pereira, settled down with A. T. H. Esmail and a stand ensued. Both Pereira and Minu bowled very steadily—but the pitch played very well and the former did not fly about at all. Both batsmen were watching the ball, and slowly—very slowly—the score rose until the forty was hoisted. Then Pereira very wisely went off—he was losing his pace—after putting A. H. Madar on at Minu's end. Minu thus could get to his proper end after an over of two's rest and the change worked wonders. In his first over Zimmerman, hitting wildly across the break skied the ball behind Pereira at short third man but the fieldman had to run with his back to the wicket, going with the catch, and he failed to hold it. But the respite did little good. In Minu's next over Zimmerman tried to hook one that was not nearly as short as he thought it was and was bowled.

ANOTHER CALAMITY

But this was not the only calamity. It proved to be the beginning of the end. With five more runs scored, in Minu's third over a much slower ball completely deceived Esmail who played a very poor shot miles too early and was caught off a skid behind the wicket. Both he and Zimmerman had played such good defensive cricket that the time method of their dismissal was most disappointing. Five were down for forty-five but eight runs later all was over. Pereira came on again, this time at his usual end and got two more wickets. Minu had the other three. Omar drove him nicely to long off for four but in trying to reverse the shot he was well taken off a low skimming drive by Abbas—an excellent catch considering how bitterly cold it was! Pereira took five for twenty-four, four of them an over-thrown! and Minu five for 23. Each bowled thirteen overs—(sorry—not Pereira had one more ball)—and had five maidens apiece. An excellent twin performance. A. H. Madar sent down five overs for six runs.

I am afraid that Craigengower are going to miss F. K. Lee (I hope these are the right initials—I got them wrong last week I'm afraid) as their batting seems very collapsible without him. It is a pity, too, that A. T. Lee does not like the new ball. He and Omar are an excellent combination.

Such regret that for certain reasons I have been unable to make this article as full as I had intended, but the balance will appear in my article on Thursday next—a day earlier than usual as there will be no publication of the Telegraph on Friday, I understand.

PLAN FOR SOCCER INTERPORT BROADCAST

The field plan as it will be followed by Captain Reed in his broadcast running commentary on the Interport soccer match at the Canidrome Shanghai on Friday. This will be the second occasion on which Captain Reed has broadcasted the Interport, the first occasion being two years ago—which incidentally was the first such broadcast to be made in Shanghai. Station XMHA will attend to details.

SHANGHAI INTERPORT TRIALS CRITICISED

Not Making Full Use Of The Fixtures Says "Shanghai Times" Writer

Are Interport trial matches of any value? It is a question which has exercised the minds of many critics in Hongkong during past years and the same question encourages a lengthy comment by C. W. Tombs in a recent issue of the Shanghai Times.

The writer's complaint is an old one. That the selectors fail to choose a probable Interport team early on and allow them to play together two or three times. His observations, in view of the forthcoming match between Shanghai and Hongkong bear reproduction, and they appear below.

Despite the assurances of the S.E.A. to the contrary, the general conclusion will be that the team playing the Inniskillings at the Stadium on Sunday is intended to be the Interport side. If not, then it should be, for it is high time Shanghai's representatives were given a chance to play a little practice and as a trial side, but as a selected Interport team.

It happens every time—but for the life of me I cannot discover exactly what is the purpose of trial matches. Little of value can be gained by putting on the field a number of men who have not played together previously; the result of the match counts for nothing and players go either brilliantly individualistic or strike a combination which must be regarded as a freak one. It could not be otherwise.

Trials therefore can be of little use to the selectors. In any case, if they had been on the sidelines for a few League matches, would not need the benefit of a trial performance to tell them what a player can do. Practically every schoolboy soccer fan selected his Interport team a month ago, and if a general consensus of opinion were taken, their youthful opinions would not be far short of meeting with general approval.

PRACTICE NEEDED

It would have been of far more value to Shanghai if the team had been selected a month ago and given the benefit of these trials which should have been played in the League and competitions. Even if the selections had not included the best soccer talent in Shanghai, the result would have been a team of men who knew how each other would play when it came to the big match.

Hongkong has already announced its team, and Shanghai can be assured of the fact that same team will get in at least one practice match—probably two or three, before it reaches Shanghai. Shanghai's team will be selected after Sunday's "trial", six days before the Interport match. It is difficult to understand what further advice the selectors require. . . . the season is more than half-way gone, and if they need still another trial before they make up their minds, Shanghai must be in a bad way for football talent.

The little difference between the team selected to play the Inniskillings and that selected by "The Shanghai Times" soccer correspondents as an Interport side. The selectors have dropped Mareal into the reserves in favour of N. Lee, while Howe has been favoured to occupy the centre-forward post before Sun, the Tung Hwa keyman. Sun has also been placed in the selected reserves.

Once again I would like to draw attention to the fact that Sammy Greenberg has not been given the trial which he deserves. The Jew's forward was my ballot in our poll for the Interport, but was squeezed out by other opinion. Basing judgment on his recent performances, however, and especially in the Palestine-Scotland Interport, a place should be found for him among the

"TEARFUL TONY" WEEPS AND LOSES

London. Because he burst into tears and refused to continue the fight, after flooring his opponent, Tony Arpino, a boxer, lost the decision. After sending his opponent, Pat Buckley, to the canvas repeatedly, Arpino sent a terrific right to the jaw that put Buckley down flat. While Arpino then leaned against the ropes, weeping, unwilling to punish his less experienced opponent, Buckley struggled to his feet just in time to beat the count.

Berlin Is Preparing For Rush

5,400 Players Alone Are To Attend

Berlin, Jan. 14. A far greater number of active participants than originally anticipated will arrive for the Olympic Games, stated secretary-general Dr. Diehm at a meeting of the organization committee.

Although hitherto official lists of entrants had been sent in by 21 countries only, that is to say, not half of the competing countries, these teams already total 3,800 persons. Competitors from the remaining 28 countries, it could be stated with a fair degree of accuracy, would bring the total number of participants to about 5,400.

The Olympic Village had been designed to accommodate only 3,500, and the committee at present is consulting with the War Ministry with a view to obtaining their co-operation for providing additional accommodation.

JAPANESE ICE HOCKEY TEAM ARRIVES

Berlin, Jan. 15. The Japanese Olympic ice hockey team comprising 15 persons and headed by its captain, Dr. Shoji, yesterday arrived in Berlin to take part in the forthcoming games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Directly from the station, the players proceeded to the Japanese Embassy, where a reception was given in their honour by the Charge d'Affaires. Interviewed by Havas Dr. Shoji said that despite the defeat suffered by his team at the hands of Polish hockeyists at Katowitz last Sunday, the Japanese players were determined to face bravely the important tests at Garmisch.

"It will be our first Olympic ice-hockey match and we are doing our utmost to win a honourable place in it," the captain declared.

honoured ones. He is particularly valuable for big matches, as he can take practically any place in the forward line.

handy, both feet has the essential experience and finally is fast.

THE TEAM CHOSEN

PRETTY WELL AS EXPECTED

As foreshadowed in these columns on Saturday last the composition of the Shanghai Interport team is substantially the same as that which appeared in the final practice match against the Inniskillings on Sunday.

Two changes only have been made, Jimmy Shute losing the right back position to King and Foy coming in for Y. L. Chia on the right wing.

These last minute changes hint that the selectors have had no easy job in finding a suitable team, and this is emphasised by the fact that the nominated combination lost to the Inniskillings after the soldiers had "dominated throughout the game."

The selector's Chosen are as follows:

Boissacoz; Kiang and Li Ning, Remedios Costa, and H. Madar; Foy, Colloco, Howe, Boissacoz, and "Darkie" Chan (Chan Chun-wo).

ENGLAND V. SCOTLAND RUGBY MATCH

Special Description To Be Broadcast

London, Jan. 20. When Scotland meets Wales at Murrayfield, Edinburgh, on February 1 in the annual Rugby Union Football International match, it is safe to say that the audience which listens to Captain H. B. T. Waklam's commentary will not be confined to those countries, nor their exiles elsewhere. A considerable proportion of listeners to these Rugby broadcasts is keenly interested in the result of the match, but it is clear from correspondence from overseas listeners received by the B.B.C. that another large section consists of those who do not care which side wins, but who thoroughly enjoy the excitement of the game as it is broadcast. This is an aspect of the commentator's art in which Captain Waklam excels.

VIVID PICTURES

To the Rugby enthusiast overseas, the commentary can bring vivid mental pictures of a forward dribble sweeping down the field, of a clever centre cutting through, a fast wing well away down the line; he can almost see the place-kick sailing beyond the posts. But there will be many interested listeners on February 1, especially in North America, who have never seen a Rugby match played, and whose mental pictures of the game at Murrayfield will be based on that modern phenomenon known as the "radio picture," which is called "seeing in sound," or "seeing with the ear alone."

A commentary on the Scotland v. Wales match will be broadcast at the following times: Transmission 8—G.M.T., Transmission 4—Saturday, February 1, at 7.45 p.m. G.M.T., Transmission 5—Saturday, February 1, at 11.55 p.m. G.M.T.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

MRS. LITTON WINS

1ST. ROUND TIE

Scores Heavily With Drop Shots

MISS MACKENZIE PLAYS WELL

(By "Veritas").

Mrs. Litton, former champion of the Colony, advanced to the second round of the ladies singles tennis championship yesterday when at the Kowloon Cricket Club she beat Miss Alison Mackenzie 6-3, 6-3.

Mrs. Litton improved after a doubtful start which saw her opponent take a lead of 3-1. The turning point in the first set was the dropping of service by Miss Mackenzie in the sixth game. From that moment Mrs. Litton assumed a supremacy which she did not again relinquish. Winning five games in a row she secured the first set after 20 minutes play and in the second established an early lead which her opponent could not reverse.

Mrs. Litton played nice steady tennis, mixing her shots cleverly and scoring most of her points by dropping the ball. Miss Mackenzie, with drop shots and then either lobbing or passing the loser as she came in to retrieve. She seldom went to the net but rested content in a baseline campaign which eventually brought its reward. In the second set Mrs. Litton crowded on a bit of pace with her drives and scored outright with some lovely placements.

SPIRITED OPPOSITION

Miss Mackenzie played spirited tennis and was seen to advantage in the early stages of the match when she played Mrs. Litton's defence with splendid forehand and backhand drives to the corners. She also made some timely and successful excursions to the net and for half a dozen games played very strongly.

Then she lired and was unable to anticipate Mrs. Litton's drop shots with the result she was often out-positioned by starting too late for them and offering her opponent a simple return. And Miss Mackenzie held her service in the sixth game of the first set the match might have taken a different turn as Mrs. Litton was clearly feeling the effects of running about. But once on level terms the winner was able to establish a firm and to play well within her physical compass.

Mrs. Litton meets Mrs. Dowling in the second round and is faced with a very stiff task.

BADMINTON

ELLIOT HALL "B" WIN AGAIN

Concede Two Games To St. Andrew's

In the Men's Doubles encounter in the Badminton League last night between Elliot Hall "B" and St. Andrew's "A" the former won by seven sets to two. The scores were as follows:

B. K. Ng and J. L. Young (Elliot Hall "B") beat E. F. Fincher and H. Kew, 21-13; beat A. E. P. Guest and Andrew's "A" 21-11; beat R. H. Wong and F. D. Wong, 21-8.

C. H. Soon and S. C. Pye (Elliot Hall "B") lost to Fincher and Kew, 18-21; beat Guest and Broadbridge, 21-13; beat Wong and Wong, 21-8.

P. E. Tan and C. H. Ng (Elliot Hall "B") lost to Fincher and Kew, 19-21; beat Guest and Broadbridge, 21-8; beat Wong and Wong, 21-6.

ST. ANDREW'S "B" v. V.R.C.

Victor's Recreation Club beat a weakened St. Andrew's "B" team last evening by six games to three.

C. N. da Silva and S. A. Rumlahn beat M. Weill and G. H. P. White 21-2; beat L. E. Kirby and P. J. Dawson 21-3; beat N. A. E. Mackay and Kirby 21-1; beat M. de Souza and J. L. do V. Soares (V.R.C.) lost to Weill and White 17-21; lost to Kirby and Dawson 8-21; beat Mackay and Matthews 21-12.

LADIES DOUBLES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

MRS. LITTON & MRS. ANDREWS WIN IN FIRST ROUND

The first match to be decided in the ladies' open doubles tennis championship of the Colony was played last week, when in a first round encounter Mrs. Litton and Mrs. L. A. Andrews eliminated Miss Perry and Miss M. Griffiths in two straight sets. The winners meet Mrs. Dowling and Mrs. Kaylin in the second round.

All About Shanghai Hockey Players

STRONG LADIES TEAM

The interport side is all that could be desired both in defence and attack and the committee is to be congratulated on its fine selection, but what one can't understand is why, when picking the Rest of Shanghai side, so many of the Sport Girls were included, writes the Shanghai Times in discussing the Shanghai ladies Hockey Interport team.

The team in question is definitely going to play the Southerners in a friendly match so why not let players of equal merit but from other clubs have this unique opportunity of meeting the visitors.

From a study of the trials that were played during the last few weeks, it was observed that A. Goncalves of the J.A.C. and Nora Seaborn of the Rowing Club could have acquitted themselves as meritoriously in the positions of backs, as the two players selected from the ranks of the Sports Girls. P. Patigara could also have taken the position of left-half as fittingly as C. Getz. Let's hope the selectors will see this point of view and make the necessary modification in order to satisfy the general consensus of opinion regarding their choice.

Carion L. (J.A.C.): Goal-keeper. Played in the Jones Shield League for the J.A.C. for many years. Is steady and vigilant. His left foot with a fair amount of skill.

E. Vicial (J.A.C.): Left-Back. Outstanding player in the J.A.C. and directly responsible for her team's yet unbeaten record this season. Represented Shanghai last February against Hongkong, it very reliable; clear, lusty and a goals in interporting and taking the ball from opponent.

E. Bloomfield (S. Girls): Right-Back. Also a thoroughly reliable right back. Has played hockey for years, combines experience with skill in tackling and clearing. Played last February at half-back against the Southerners.

F. Bomko (Rowing Club): Left-half. Played previously for the S.P.S. where she learnt her hockey. Made a very good impression last February against Hongkong at right back. Will acquit herself well in the left-half berth if she strengthens her endurance and rofains from her obstructing tactics.

M. Cracken (S. Girls): Centre-half. Played previously for the S.A.S. and was a member of the winning team last year, of the Jones Shield. Is very steady, hard-working and distributes the ball well to her forwards. Covers up well.

D. Forshaw (Amazons): Right-half. Learnt her hockey in England. Made her first appearance locally this season. Her usual position is centre forward, but she has shown off well in this position. Sticks to her ornament well.
